RUMRILL TELLS ABOUT KISSES

CONFIRM NEW CRIME IN MEXICO

EL PASO, March 3.—Anti-Mexican bitterness burst into flames again here today when confirmation was received of the murder of John Harmon, an American from Syracuse, N. Y., at Madera, Mexico. This was fanned by claims of Mexican officials that Harmon was killed in a private quarrel and that his death had no political significance.

United States Consul Thomas D. Edwards, who has been trying in vain to get some trace of Gustav Bauch, another American who has been missing for nearly two weeks following his arrest by General Villa, today turned his attention to the murder of Harmon.

The impasse caused by General Carranza in the Benton investigation continued today, but British Consul Perceval questioned more persons while he awaited the return of George C. Carothers, diplomatic agent of the American State Department, from Nogales, whither he went to learn why Carranza had halted the inquiry.

GREAT BRITAIN WILL PROTECT SUBJECTS IN MEXICO, SAYS GREY

LONDON, March 3.—General Carranza's demand that the British government deal with him in investigating the death of William S. Benton, the wealthy rancher, executed at Juarez, will be disregarded. This was shown today by the replies made by Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary, to questions put to him in the House of Commons.

The first query put was as to whether the government had recognized General Villa, Carranza's chief aide, as a belligerent. Sir Edward stated flatly that this recognition had not been accorded the rebel leader.

A subsequent question asked by the opposition in an attempt to learn what the American policy would be brought the answer that the Foreign Secretary was unaware that the United States "had made any declaration on this subject."

When pressed for an explanation of the fact that the British government had accorded recognition to President Huerta, Sir Edward explained that this action had been taken last March because the Foreign Office had been advised that

Earl Grey's Remarks Fail to Affect the Stock Market

In the financial districts of Boston, London and New York today there was tension while financiers and speculators waited to hear what Earl Grey would say in Parliament.

Opponents of the British government are disposed to make political capital out of its inaction over the killing of Benton by Villa revolutionists.

When Earl Grey said the British government would ignore General Carranza's demand that it deal with him direct instead of through the United States in investigating Benton's death, it was believed that the crisis had only been postponed.

Stock markets were not affected either way.

Surrenders Man Who Was Dead and Buried

The Lynn probation officer today surrendered Harry M. Rollins, who on February 7 was brought into court on a charge of non-support. "Your Honor," said the officer, "in December, the papers said this man was dead and buried in Brooklyn." Rollins jumped to his feet: "I deny that," he cried. "I don't know anything about my being dead or buried either."

Rockefeller Iceman Agrees to Cut Price

NEW YORK, March 3.—George Ferguson, iceman for John D. Rockefeller at Pocantico Hills, announces that ice will be cheaper for the oil king and his neighbors this Summer. Ferguson, being the only dealer in Pocantico, has an ice trust of his own. Rockefeller installed an ice manufacturing plant, but it will not operate, as Ferguson has agreed to cut prices.

Look for Owner of Abandoned Babe

The police are looking for the person who abandoned a two-weeks-old baby boy on the rear doorstep at No. 58 Saratoga street, East Boston, early today. The soundly sleeping youngster was picked up by A. J. Raush, who notified the police. The baby was taken to the East Boston Relief Hospital.

Francis Cogswell of Cambridge Dead

Francis Cogswell, formerly for many years superintendent of schools in Cambridge, died early today at his home, No. 257 Prospect street. He had been ill for some time. He was one of the best known residents of the city and was a school principal before becoming superintendent.

Court Denies Motion of Mellen Defence

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., March 3.—In Superior Court today Judge Tuttle rendered his decision in the plea to the jurisdiction made by counsel for Charles S. Mellen, former president of the New Haven Railroad. His decision was a denial of the motion.

50 LIVES LOST IN BLIZZARD

NEW YORK, March 3.—A bright sun and rising temperature gave aid to New York today in its desperate efforts to break the ice shackles placed upon the metropolis by the worst blizzard since 1888. Reports trickling in over repaired but still tottering wires showed that the death list as a result of the storm in the States along the coast will reach fifty, and may go much higher.

The blizzard damage in the East is expected to reach $10,000,000. The cost of snow removal in this city alone will be $2,000,000.

Six ships are ashore on the Atlantic coast, and many small craft were sunk in the ice. As the wind abated today tugs put out from this port to search for a string of missing barges, carrying twenty-three men, which was lost in the blizzard off Fire Island.

The aftermath of the blizzard in this city found its chief activities in clearing off the streets and attempts to restore traffic conditions.

Street Commissioner Featherstone personally headed a force of 7,000 men who at daybreak attacked the fourteen-inch layer of snow in the principal streets.

STODDARD RISKS LIFE.

Interurban traffic was quickly relieved of congestion after the snow ceased falling, but steam traffic is still seriously crippled because of the wreckage upon the tracks. The Lakewood-Atlantic City express was still snowed in near Red Bank, N. J., this morning. But for the heroism of L. E. Stoddard, the famous polo player, who risked his life in securing food, 100 passengers would have faced starvation.

A food and coal shortage threatens the city, but the menace of a milk famine was avoided by the action of the railroad companies in giving milk trains the right of way where it was possible for trains to run at all.

A number of ships are overdue and at least thirty vessels are still at sea which ought to have been moored at their docks Sunday or yesterday. Great fields of ice in the Hudson and East Rivers paralyzed shipping.

All the charitable institutions for the shelter of the homeless were taxed to capacity during the night. About 20,000 men, women and children sought shelter at various institutions. Of this number, 200 under leadership of Frank Tannebaum of the I. W. W. marched to St. Mark's Protestant Church, at Tenth street and Second avenue, where they demanded lodging. They were given sandwiches and allowed to sleep in the pews.

Charlestown to Aid Boston "Boom"

Bryan Grandfather for the Sixth Time

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Secretary of State Bryan today became a grandfather for the sixth time when Mrs. Richard L. Hargreaves of Lincoln, Neb., his daughter, gave birth to an eight-pound girl.

DIVORCE FOR MRS. FRENCH

NEWPORT, R. I., March 3.—How Mrs. Pauline LeRoy French, society leader, mother of Mrs. Julia French Geraghty and sister of Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt, had to borrow money from her French maid and also her friends to support herself, was told today by Mrs. French, who was granted a divorce from her husband, Amos Tuck French, in the quick time of seven minutes, for his failure to provide and alleged gross misbehavior.

Mrs. French's story was told in the form of depositions filed with Judge Chester W. Barrows of the Superior Court. She said:

"I was married at All Saints' Church in this city by Bishop Clark in 1885. I left my husband in August, 1911, because he has said he would never live with me again. I had given him no cause and since that time he has totally ignored me.

"I have made my home at Maple Shade Villa with my mother during the past two years and a half. I made repeated demands for money with which to support myself and children, but with no results, although Mr. French owns a fine place at Tuxedo Park.

"I was obliged to borrow money from my friends."

Mrs. Stuyvesant LeRoy, mother of Mrs. French, deposed: "My daughter has not received one cent for her support from Mr. French. She has had to support herself as best she could."

Camile, a French maid, in employ of the family for ten years, stated in her deposition: "I have lived at Maple Shade Villa for more than two years and I have loaned Mrs. French money when it became necessary."

The divorced couple are the father and mother of Julia French Geraghty, the independent daughter of the family whose elopement-marriage to handsome "Jack" Geraghty, a chauffeur, was a shock to society a few years ago.

Two Ribs Broken by Castle Square Thugs

NASHUA, N. H., Mach 3.—Charles Robinson, a stock broker, is suffering with two fractured ribs and numerous other bruises as a result, he says, of being held up by thugs in Castle square, Boston, Monday night. According to Robinson he was relieved of an overcoat and $65 in money.

"HEAVEN-SENT LOVE CAME UNSOUGHT."

"Mrs. Rantoul said: 'This great love—this Heaven-sent divine love—came into my life unsought. It is an irresistible love. Rumrill has brought out the best, the most intellectual side of my nature. I cannot resist it. I must go with him and satisfy this great love.'"—Neal Rantoul testifying today at divorce trial of his brother and sister-in-law at Cambridge.

Chester C. ("Chippie") Rumrill, former chum of Edward L. Rantoul, for whom Mrs. Rantoul confessed a "heaven-sent," "irresistible" love, and who is testifying today for the respondent in the divorce suit brought by Mrs. Rantoul.

ADMITS LOVE FOR WIFE OF RANTOUL

Kisses between Lois Burnett Rantoul and "Chippie" Rumrill, her husband's class and clubmate and erstwhile friend, were described by Rumrill himself on the witness stand at the East Cambridge Divorce Court today, while Edward L. Rantoul, the husband, sat with his eyes glued to Rumrill's face. But Rumrill never looked at Rantoul.

Mrs. Rantoul, notified ahead that Chester Chapin Rumrill was to take the stand, remained in an ante-room. But, if she had kept her seat in the courtroom she would have heard Rumrill tell in interesting detail about their kisses and the number of them.

Rumrill admitted that his relations with Mrs. Rantoul did "pass beyond friendship," as the question was worded.

He denied, however, that there was "any declaration of affection" between them.

Then the kissing questions by Attorney Hunt.

Had Mrs. Rantoul ever permitted him to take any liberty with her. She had, according to "Chippie" Rumrill.

Mr. Rantoul leaned back a bit to get a better look at Rumrill.

Had Mrs. Rantoul let Rumrill kiss her?

Witness answered softly "yes," and more than once.

Pressed, however, for how many times, Rumrill replied: "Seldom."

Asked how "far beyond friendship" their affection passed, Rumrill replied:

"It was simply an understanding that she cared for me."

He had the same understanding, too.

An inetresting new point brought out was the price Rumrill paid for the earrings and the diamond ring he gave Mrs. Rantoul. The earrings cost $300. So did the ring.

Rumrill admitted—in low tone—having given Mrs. Rantoul silk stockings.

Rumrill was self-possessed. He dis-

Wakefield, sentenced to be hanged for the murder of her husband, William O. Wakefield, might immediately be taken up.

BRITAIN WARNS UNITED STATES IN BENTON CASE

such recognition would best contribute to the re-establishment of order in Mexico.

"This government's action was in conformity with the usual practice," said the Foreign Secretary. "No assurances had been obtained from Huerta regarding the protection of British subjects."

Sir Edward was cheered when he declared that Great Britain would maintain her policy of protecting British subjects and made this statement, which was regarded as a significant warning to the United States:

"If the United States does not desire to take steps on its own behalf, or that of Great Britain, the British government will reserve the right to itself to secure reparation. We have no intention of sending a force to any part of Mexico, but we do not intend to let the matter rest."

This is the first formal announcement that the British government will demand reparation for the death of Benton. The foreign secretary declared that there was every indication of the purpose of the Mexicans (meaning the Constitutionalists) to conceal the truth regarding the death of Benton. He said that all efforts to secure a complete investigation of Benton's death had thus far failed, but that communications with the United States were proceeding.

In his statement he did not imply in any way that the United States was responsible for the death of Benton, but made it plain that England would exact full satisfaction, either through the agency of the United States or by itself.

In conclusion Sir Edward said:

"If the United States thinks it proper to act further in behalf of British subjects, this government will gladly await the result, but if the United States does not consider it desirable to act, Benton's violent death necessitates that the British government do whatever it can in its own behalf.

"England has reserved the right to secure reparation whenever there's an opportunity, but nothing Great Britain could do would be effective under the present conditions. It is impossible to secure reparation from the Mexican government, which does not control the territory where Benton was killed."

In reply to another question the speaker said:

"Great Britain does not intend to send a force into Mexico. Blockading the ports would only aid the contending northerners."

Duke Refuses Widow, But Will Meet Her

NEW YORK, March 2.—The storm that put the railroads out of business is responsible for this unspeakable insult to Rene Francois Joseph de Warran, Duke of Warren-Surrey, who is stopping at the Hotel Gotham. Because there were no trains to Washington the duke was marooned in the hotel and the easy prey to an envoy from a woman with $5,000,000 who wants to become the duchess. In high dudgeon the duke sent back a thousand "noes," and with them the word that if the lady would arrange a meeting the duke would see "if he could love her." For love he must, after the "tie" is assured.

BRING CHARGES AGAINST OUSTED REVERE CHIEFS

The town election at Revere has ushered in a bitter conflict among the politicians and office holders. The Selectmen, with the utmost promptitude, met half an hour after they were elected and suspended the chief of police, Claire P. Chainey; the superintendent of streets, J. V. Fitzgerald, and the superintendent of buildings, Peter G. Murphy.

Not only that, but serious charges are made against Chainey and Fitzgerald, and they will be given a hearing before the Selectmen—Chainey on March 12, and Fitzgerald tomorrow night.

The chairman of the Selectmen, Walter T. White, thus stated the charges against the two officials.

"We charge Chief Chainey with incompetence, neglect of duty, failure to be at the station houses at the regular time and failure to raid places selling liquor illegally in the town of Revere.

"We charge that Fitzgerald used the city laborers in excavating cellars and laying sidewalks for private citizens. We charge he received at least two checks from citizens for this work—one for $225 and one for $50. We charge that when this was discovered he went to Treasurer Arthur G. Tapley and offered to make good."

Chief Chainey heard of the board's action in suspending him from an AMERICAN reporter. He said:

"That's news to me. I went to bed early last night. When I get an official notification I may have something to say."

The new Board of Selectmen, all Republican for the first time in several years, includes beside Chairman White, John S. Bozell, Jacob Mendoza, Joseph H. Smith and William W. Gordon. In place of Chainey they appointed Lieutenant George C. Devine acting chief. In place of Fitzgerald they named W. A. Sancrie. It is expected that at tomorrow's meeting Sealer of Weights and Measures Eugene Lakemarsian will be ousted. The Selectmen's meetings will be public hereafter.

Pickup 8 of 40 Lost on Barges

NEW YORK, Marc h3.—After being given up for dead, eight members of a crew of forty men, who were on ten coal-laedn barges which broke loose from the tug Edgar F. Luckenbach off Fire Island during the blizzard, were rescued today. They had been tossed about at the mercy of the sea for more than thirty hours. Two of the barges were picked up and anchored off Sandy Hook, but the fate of the other thirty-two men on the other missing eight barges was unknown. The men were helpless from exposure when rescued.

Winslow Wreckage on Block Island

BLOCK ISLAND, R. I., March 3.—Wreckage from the four-masted schooner Jacob S. Winslow was picked up today on the southeast shore of the island. GIRLS! GIRLS! YOU MUST TRY THIS! DOUBLES BEAUTY OF YOUR HAIR

For 25 cents you can make your hair lustrous, fluffy and abundant.

Immediate?—Yes! Certain?—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty soft hair, and lots of it, surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and just try it.

MOTOR IN PLACE OF FIRE HORSE, GRADY'S PLAN

Promising "a square deal to all" and to act as "a strict and just disciplinarian" to the men under him, Deputy Chief John Grady of the Boston Fire Department, whose name has been sent to the Civil Service Commission as Mayor Curley's choice for Fire Commissioner Cole's place, today declared his intention of "obtaining the highest state of efficiency in the department.

He is of opinion that the horse has outlived its usefulness to the fire department, in view of the strides which have been made in motor vehicles the past few years. He says it is his intention to advocate the elimination of the horse from all fire houses.

COMPLIMENT TO FIREMEN.

"My appointment is in a way a compliment to the firemen throughout Massachusetts," said Deputy Chief Grady. "The appointment of a man from the ranks establishes a precedent and designates a goal which may be reached. This is an incentive to firemen. It gives them something to work for. It makes the men ambitious.

"The question has been asked if I would accept the office and as to whether or not it would affect my pension. I wish to state that I will accept the office if confirmed by the civil service. As regards the pension, let me say that I am fully protected by the law governing such matters. I consider my appointment as commissioner a promotion, which makes me still a member of the department. The law governing pensions reads: 'Any member of the fire department of the city of Boston who has performed service in that department for a period of not less than twenty-five years, and who has reached the age of forty-five, shall, upon his own petition to the Fire Commissioner, be retired and placed on the pension list.'

TO LEAD COUNTRY.

"I am thoroughly familiar with the needs of the department, and what changes I shall make will be announced upon my assuming the office to which I have been appointed.

"I feel confident of the hearty cooperation of the members of the department. I am sure the men will work shoulder to shoulder with me to make the department 'the best fire department in the world.'

"For forty years I have been a member of the Boston fire department. I have gained considerable experience as a fire fighter during that time. I worked up to my present position from the ranks. I have been in many a hard-fought fire. I know from experience how my fellow-workers who fight fires feel. I shall never forget them. They will be at liberty to call on me in my new position with suggestions.

RECEIVES MANY LETTERS.

"As commissioner I will be able to be at home with my wife and family a great deal more than I have. I have lived up to the rule concerning meal hours from the time I entered the department to the present time. My meal hours as deputy as deputy fire chief have been the same as the subordinates under me."

Since the announcement of Deputy Chief Grady's appointment he has received hundreds of letters and telephone calls congratulating him.

Here is a type of one letter received:

"Permit me, please, to congratulate you on your final success in winning as a reward for your long, hard and faithful service, the highest honor which may be attained as a fireman."

DEPUTY FIRE CHIEF JOHN GRADY, who has been appointed Fire Commissioner.

BOSTON MAN RESCUED FROM LINER HOWARD

Passengers on board the Merchants & Miners' liner Howard were rescued by the providential arrival of a tug alongside when she went on the rocks in Chesapeake Bay, dispatches from Baltimore today announce.

The Howard, which sailed from Boston last Friday for Newport News and Baltimore, had a stormy trip down the coast. After battling the gale for hours, in the dusk yesterday, she piled up on Seven Foot Knoll, in Chesapeake Bay.

Six passengers left Boston on the Howard, but only one of these was aboard her when she went ashore. R. Donovan, A. McG. Hume, H. J. Prunty, L. L. Stokesbury and Fred Muelhause disembarked at Newport News, where other passengers embarked. J. H. Casey sailed from Boston for Baltimore and was among those rescued.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., March 3.—Seumas MacManus, author, suffered a nervous breakdown after delivering a lecture here and is confined to bed.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old, famous Sage Tea recipe are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray, becoming faded, dry, scraggly and thin have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful—all dandruff goes, scalp itching and falling hair stops.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur tonight and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

DENOUNCE THE 'HOUNDING' OF HARRY THAW

ALBANY, March 3.—Assemblyman John B. Golden, in connection with his fight to find out why New York State is spending huge sums of money to drag Harry K. Thaw back to Matteawan, told the Assembly "it appears as if some eminent citizens, interested in keeping Thaw in jail, must have spent considerable money."

He demanded that the "useless and unwarranted waste of money on Thaw" be ended, and declared he had received hundreds of letters supporting his stand.

Assemblyman Golden is fighting to block William Travers Jerome's attempts to drag Thaw back to Matteawan. He has introduced two resolutions calling for an opinion from the Attorney General on the propriety and legality of the expenditures to get Thaw back from Canada into the United States and for an account of all money spent or contracted to be spent.

If his fight is successful, it will mean that Jerome, without funds to prosecute his pursuit of Thaw, must give up the fight and allow the famous fugitive to go free.

"Since introducing the two former resolutions," said Assemblyman Golden, "relating to Harry K. Thaw, I have been showered with letters from all parts of the State couched in the strongest terms, protesting against the State continuing the useless and unwarranted waste of money on Thaw.

"Mr. Jerome comes out with a public statement that he is $1,200 out of pocket in prosecuting the present extradition proceedings. This may be true, since the bills have not yet been paid by the State. In fact, if he is only out $1,200 to date, it appears as if some eminent citizens, interested in keeping Thaw in jail, must have spent considerable.

"Consequently I have introduced this first resolution asking the State Treasurer to report the amounts paid Jerome and the alienists in the Thaw habeas corpus proceedings of 1911 and 1912 in order that the public might see the large sums wasted. Therefore if Jerome is really out $1,200 to date on the present case he must remember it is laid out in the interest of an 'old client.' Everyone knows a lawyer will proceed with an old remunerative client's case—such as the State has been Jerome—and be subsequently reimbursed, especially since the Comptroller of the State could not authorize the payment of even disbursements which are concededly illegal.

"The second resolution introduced by me merely asks the Attorney-General—the legal officer of the State—for an opinion as to the legality of the money paid or contracted to be paid in the Thaw matter in Canada. The Assembly wants his opinion on this, and as members of the Legislature, sworn to do our duty under the Constitution, we cannot authorize the payments of any moneys spent illegally."

Maine Girl Ends Life with Gun in Affair of Heart

FARMINGTON, Me., March 3.—A shattered love affair and a broken heart were today said to have been the motive for the mysterious suicide of Hazeltine Stewart, a seventeen-year-old high school girl, who shot and killed herself with a hunting rifle at the home of her uncle, Harry Smith, at South Strong.

The girl is said to have been friendly with a young man in Farmington, but they had a quarrel and she went to the home of her uncle to spend the week-end. She was the daughter of Charles Stewart of West Mills Industry, but during the school year made her home in Farmington with W. E. McLane and his mother.

On the third day of her stay at South Strong Hazeltine was talking to her uncle and aunt in the parlor of the Brown homestead, when she suddenly excused herself and said she was going to her room. Instead she stole into the kitchen, took her uncle's hunting rifle from the wall and killed herself.

ACID STOMACHS ARE DANGEROUS

Nine-tenths of All Stomach Trouble Said to Be Due to Acidity.

A Physician's Advice on Cause and Cure.

A famous physician whose successful researches into the cause and cure of stomach and intestinal diseases have earned for him an international reputation, said in the course of a recent lecture that nearly all intestinal troubles, as well as many diseases of the vital organs, were directly traceable to a deranged condition of the stomach which in turn was due nine times out of ten to excessive acidity, commonly termed sour stomach or heartburn, which not only irritated and inflamed the delicate lining of the stomach, but also set up gastritis and stomach ulcers. It is interesting to note that he condemns the use of patent medicines as well as of medical treatment for the stomach, stating that he and his colleagues have secured remarkable results by the use of ordinary bisurated magnesia, which, by neutralizing the acidity of the food, removes the source of the trouble. He contends that it is as foolish to treat the stomach itself as it would be for a man who stepped on a tack to rub liniment on the feet without first removing the tack. Remove the tack and the foot will heal itself—neutralize the acid and stomach troubles will disappear. Irritating medicines and medical treatments are useless, so long as the contents of the stomach remain acid; remove the acidity, and there will be no need for medicine—the inflamed lining of the stomach will then heal itself. Sufferers from acidity, sour stomach or heartburn should get a small bottle of bisurated magnesia from their druggist and take a teaspoonful in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after meals, repeating in fifteen minutes, if necessary, this being the dose which the doctor has found most efficacious in all cases.

MISS FUNG HIN LIU, second Chinese girl in the college history to be admitted to Alpha Kappa Chi at Wellesley.

WELLESLEY GIRLS DO WED, SAYS LEADER

Wellesley college girls can survive one excitement at a time without a flutter. In fact, they're not happy without something to chater about. But when two sensations are visited on the college by Waban all at once, it's almost too much.

In elocution classes today the girls forced to say "Ah" and "Bah" and "Dah-may-neepoh-toolah-bay" to get their jaws loose and wiggly, did it with a distraught expression. For not only has a Chinese girl, the second in the college's history, been admitted to a sorority, but Professor Roswell Johnson has said that Wellesley girls don't get married—and half a page in the Wellesley College News full of engagements, marriages and births every week at that!

The Chinese miss is Fung Hin Liu, and she has won membership in the Alpha Kappa Chi society, one of the leaders among teh sorrorities.

Professor Johnson's article—in hte "Journal of Heredity"—is taken so seriously that it has drawn answers from President Ellen Fitz Pendleton herself, not to mention Dean Alice V. Waitt.

President Pendleton said:

"The statistics of the Association of Collegiate Alumni will show you that as large or a larger portion of college girls marry as do the girls outside the college. The association has compared the college girl with her non-college sister, or cousin, or some other girl of the same age and position in life, and has found that the college girl is more likely to marry young and have children."

Miss Alice V. Waitt, dean of Wellesley, laughed when the matter was put to her.

"I'm afraid I can't answer in statistics as to what effect Wellesley has on the girls' likelihood to marry, but my reasons for believing that the women's colleges prepare girls best to live their natural lives are simple," she said. "First of all, the academic training gives the girl power of judgment, poise and control. Assuredly this is a great qualification for the graduate of twenty-two when she thinks of wifehood."

ELIOT COMES OUT STRONG FOR TEMPERANCE

President-emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard is out with a statement that the increase of feebleminded, insane and criminal people is largely due to the use of alcohol.

He maintains that for the past ten years his studies have led him to look more carefully into temperance than ever before. About these studies, he says in a published document now printed for the first time by the Unitarian Temperance Society:

"These studies related to the terrible effects of alcoholism in increasing the number of the feeble-minded, insane and criminal in our American communities. Later, I had the opportunity of studying the German investigations on the mental effects of very limited doses of alcohol, doses which most people have always supposed to be completely innocuous. The German investigations seemed to me to prove that even twenty-four hours after taking a small dose of alcohol the time-reaction in the human being is unfavorably affected.

"Lastly, somewhat more than a year ago, I had a long opportunity of observing the difference between the white race and the Japanese, the Chinese, the Indian, the Malay, and some of the Mahometan people, in regard to susceptibility to the alcoholic temptation. The white race is inferior to all the other people I have named in regard to this susceptibility to the temptation of alcoholism. No observant person can travel through the East for a year without being shocked by the manifest tendency of the white race temporarily resident there to destroy itself through alcoholism.

"The lesson of the East is that the alcoholism of the white race must be overcome, or that vice will overcome the race."

MELBOURNE, March 3.—Alfred Deakin, former Federal Premier, has been appointed chief of Australia's Panama Exposition Commission. This choice is regarded as significant of the importance the government attaches to Australia's exhibit.

Made Mme. Rappold "Citizen" of Denver

NEW YORK, March 3.—Mme. Marie Rappold, who is here after the collapse of the Canadian National Opera Company, tells how the citizens of Denver conferred "honorable citizenship" upon her at a public concert, for her part in raising funds to get the company to New York. When the company stranded there were no funds for the members, but under Mme. Rappold's leadership performances were given that provided the necessary relief.

Clerks Plan Shaft to Honor Stevenson

MONTEREY, Cal., March 3.—Years ago George Berthold, the local cobbler, mended a pair of shoes for Novelist Robert Louis Stevenson. Berthold became rich after a long friendship with the writer, and willed funds for a memorial to his friend. The courts set this bequest aside, but allowed Berthold's property to go to his clerks. Now the clerks have made up the fund necessary for the shaft.

RAINS PROVE BIG BENEFIT IN CALIFORNIA

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 3.—Southern California already has resumed its normal Winter outdoor life amid balmy air and under sunny skies. Although this region was visited last week by a rainstorm that was almost unprecedented in its volume, the consequent floods subsided as quickly as they came and every activity of commerce, agriculture and recreation is again in full swing throughout this region.

Railroad transportation, interrupted for two or three days by washouts, is fully restored and all the railroads are hauling more than normal traffic. The roads are fine, weather conditions are perfect, both for crops and for enjoyment of Southern California outdoor life.

No damage whatever to the splendid orange and lemon crops was done by the rain, except in isolated cases, where a few trees near streams were uprooted. On the other hand the rainfall was most timely and beneficial to citrus groves. Picking of the fruit is in full swing again after a few days of interruption and experts estimate that the crop will approach the total of [illegible] carloads harvested in 1911.

Dairymen are jubilant and all forms of horticulture and agriculture are blessed with ideal conditions. The effect is manifest in a decided brightening in every line of business.

Kipling in Fight Against Home Rule

LONDON, March 3.—Rudyard Kipling, Lord Roberts, Viscount Milner, Sir William Ramsey and others have issued an appeal to their fellow countrymen to follow their example in signing a declaration by which they hold themselves in case the Irish home rule bill becomes law without first being submitted to the judgment of the nation, "justified in taking any action to prevent it being put in operation."

Beer Drought in New York Impends

NEW YORK, March 3. — A beer drought impends. The inability of brewery trucks to plunge through the snow today left most of the large cafes on Broadway and popular side streets with low supplies.

Biggest Armada to Be at Canal Opening

WASHINGTON, March 3. — The greatest armada ever assembled, one hundred and twenty-five men-of-war, including some of the greatest battleships afloat, will gather in Caribbean water for the opening of the Panama Canal.

IN THE THEATRES

Mary Young Wins as 'Girl of Golden West'

The fascinating "Girl of the Golden West" we have with us once more, this time at the Castle Square Theatre, where she appeared last evening in the person of Mary Young.

Whenever Miss Young is in the cast there is sure to be added interest to any play essayed by the Craig players, and last night was no exception. She was received with long and enthusiastic applause, this being her third appearance on the stage there this season.

The famous Belasco play needs no introduction or description to Boston playgoers. To most everybody its story is familiar, but to many it never loses its interest and those who have witnessed the play in other years still find it attractive and wish to see it "just once more."

Briefly, the play is laid in California in the days of '49. The "Girl" is a beautiful figure set in a Wild West background.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

"Traffic in White Slaves" continues at the Bowdoin Square Theatre. It is a motion picture story of many thrilling scenes. The new bill yesterday included a number of attractive vaudeville features.

Howard Athenaeum.

The new show at the Old Howard yesterday was furnished by "The Military Maids," a burlesque organization of many talented people. There was also a lively vaudeville program.

St. James Theatre.

"The Rough House Kids," a musical comedy of vaudeville size, headed the new bill at the St. James Theatre yesterday. There were a dozen other features on the program.

Plays That Remain.

"Under Cover" continues at the Plymouth. Not even the Lenten season is lessening the public interest in this spirited play.

"Within the Law" has settled down to an indefinite season of real prosperity at the Majestic. Capacity audiences are the rule.

"Way Down East" remains at the Boston, where its rural simplicity and honest dramatic values are drawing big houses.

Raymond Hitchcock and "The Beauty Shop" are keeping the moments merry at the Tremont. It is all music and fun.

The Captain Scott motion pictures are still at Tremont Temple. They supply a vivid picture of the dash to the South Pole.

Coming Attractions.

The Gilbert and Sullivan Festival Company, with DeWolf Hopper, will come to the Shubert next week in a revival of "The Mikado," "The Pirates of Penzance," "Pinafore" and "Iolanthe."

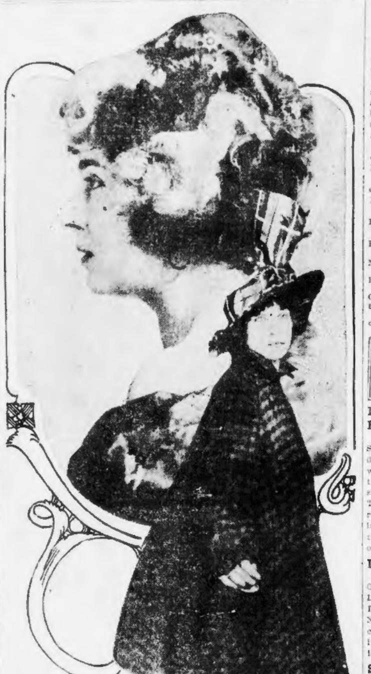
"Bunty Pulls the Strings" will be the attraction at the Boston Theatre next week.

"Mrs. Gorringe's Necklace" will be Mr. Craig's offering at the Castle Square Theatre next week.

"Poor Little Rich Girl" will come to the Hollis on March 16.

"The Little Cafe" is announced as the attraction coming to the Colonial on March 16.

TWO STARTLING NEW STYLES FOR WOMEN, JUST IN FROM PARIS



© BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE.

The most daring of hair fads is shown at the top, the "flag wig," so-called because it is red, white and blue, with stars for ornaments. The "bell coat," worn with the extremely narrow skirt, emphasizes the extreme of fashion in the newer modes. Taffeta is to be much worn, especially the plaids, and the changeable effects of the 1830 period are being revived. Ruching of the collar material and tiny ruffles and shirrings and cordings and all such early Victorian ideas will be seen. The bolero jacket, especially in silk suits, will be very popular. Besides the bustle in the back, many of the silk frocks are made with a full front effect as well.

DISAGREE ON ANSWERS TO CLOCK PUZZLE

There's nothing can make more trouble than a clock that won't keep time. The clock in the AMERICAN'S clock puzzle persists in gaining ten minutes a day—and hundreds on hundreds of readers have been trying to figure out what time it is. Just notice how their answers disagree. Here's the puzzle—maybe you can work it out:

"If a calendar clock which indicates the second, minute, hour and the day of the month shows the correct time at 5 p. m. on Saturday, January 17, and gains 10 minutes daily, what will be the correct time when the clock indicates that it is 5 p. m. on February 17?"

Here are some of the answers:

M. McArthur, No. 3 Holes street, Atlantic, 10:32 a. m.; Ida J. Simmerman, No. 124 Chelsea street, East Boston, 10:10 p. m.; Bernard O'Connor, No. 121 Florence street, Everett, 11:50 a. m.; G. H. NEW NAMES ARE URGED FOR THE MAYOR'S AUTO

That Stoneham man who suggested: "In view of Mayor Curley's fight for two offices, why not call his new automobile the 'Double Runner,'" seems to have hit the mark. Letters and suggestions are still pouring in, but many declare the "Double Runner" is the aptest name possible. Here are some of today's letters:

"American Beauty," or "The Tango," or "The Winner," Anna B. Ullnen, Revere.

"Sweet Pea," "Blossom," "Violet," or "Black Beauty," James Ullen, Revere.

"The Last Hope," J. D. Mansfield, Rochester, N. H.

"Victory," or "Good Luck," Mrs. D. H. Rose, South Boston.

"Courageous," William E. Monahan, No. 319 Fourth street, South Boston.

"Standfast," or "Boston Hub," William J. Robertson, Quincy.

"Echo," Miss Evelyn White, Gloucester.

"Van Dyke," Alfred T. Balch, Rochester, N. H.

LATE NEWS BY CABLE

ITALIAN DEPUTIES EMBRACE AFTER DUEL.

ROME, March 3.—Two deputies, Signors Balsano and Drago, fought a duel with swords here yesterday. Both were wounded in the face after which they declared their honor had been satisfied and embraced each other. The duel was the outcome of the uproar in the Chamber on Saturday during the explanation of Premier Giolitti's of the expenditure of large sums of money for reclaiming barren lands.

Dancers Again on London Stage.

LONDON, March 3.—Nijinsky and Genee made their reappearance on the London stage last night, one at the Palace, the other at the Coliseum. Nijinsky's press agent says he receives $5,000 a week, while Genee's intimates that her emolument is not less.

The Chaperon's Chatter

One of the most interesting of Lenten events and one to which society always looks forward with pleasure is the private view of the loan exhibition of "Portraits of Living Painters," which is to be held in Copley Hall this evening.

On the committee in charge of the affair are Holker Abbott, Thomas Allen, Mrs. I. Tucker Burr, Frederick W. Coburn, J. Templeton Coolidge, Jr., Desmond Fitzgerald, Thomas G. Frothingham, A. W. Longfellow, Frank Gair Macomber, Mrs. Everett Morss, Miss Helen G. Moseley, Mrs. William L. Parker, John Endicott Peabody, Miss Annie C. Putnam, Mrs. Charles S. Sargent, Mrs. J. Montgomery Sears, Miss Martha Silsbee, Mrs. Henry D. Sleeper, Joseph Lindon Smith, C. Howard Walker and Edward R. Warren.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Longyear of Brookline have sent out cards for a small school party which they are giving on March 14 for their youngest son, Robert B. Longyear. The Longyears have as their house guests their daughter, Mrs. J. M. Richardson Lythe and her young son.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Lee Loomis of Tuxedo Park are guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Farnsworth in Dedham. Before her marriage Mrs. Loomis was Miss Ellen Farnsworth, one of the prettiest of society girls in Boston.

Physician Tells How to Grow Hair

A Well-Known Physician and Newspaper Correspondent Tells How to Promote the Growth of the Hair.

A well-known physician who has made a careful study of the hair recently made the following statement: "It is comparatively easy to stop the hair from falling out, promote its growth and banish dandruff by the following simple recipe, which can be made at home: To 7 oz. of water add a small box of Barbo Compound, 1 oz. of bay rum and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Apply it to the scalp with the finger tips two or three times per week. It not only is excellent as a scalp and hair tonic, but it darkens faded, streaked, gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. I use it myself and have no hesitancy in recommending it to my patients. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost." Advt.

Rivadavia Charges Declared Baseless

Naval circles are interested in a dispatch from Berlin reporting that charges have been made in the German steel and iron trade that the Argentine dreadnought Rivadavia in several important respects has failed to come up to the expectations of the Argentine government. The Fore River officials declared there was absolutely no foundation for the charges.

Count Witte Fears War of All Europe

LONDON, March 3.—Count Witte, who made peace between Russia and Japan at Portsmouth in 1905, in a statement printed in the Contemporary Review protests against Europe's enormous expenditure for armaments and says: "Unless the great States which set this hideous example agree to call a halt and knit their subjects into a pacific, united Europe, war is the only issue I can perceive."

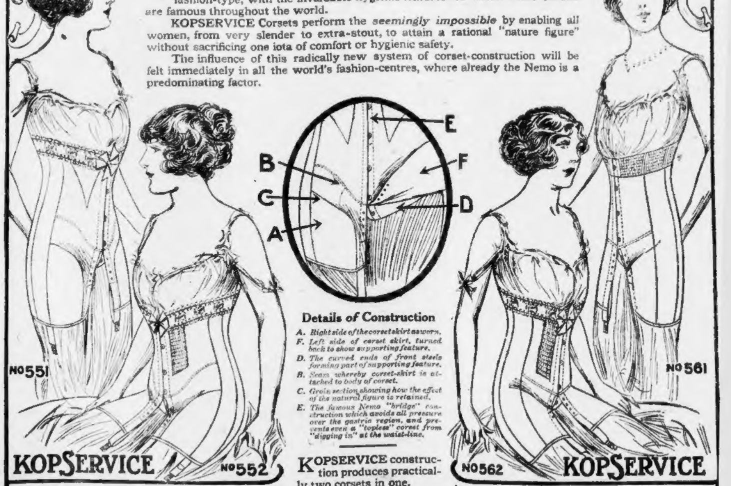
Nemo KOPSERVICE
ENTIRELY NEW IN CONSTRUCTION IN EXCLUSIVE FEATURES IN HYGIENIC PROPERTIES IN STYLE EFFECTS AT $5.00
OF VITAL IMPORTANCE TO ALL WOMEN

THE new Nemo KOPSERVICE Corsets completely solve the vexed corset-problems of the day by harmonizing the "nature figure," as a distinct fashion-type, with the invaluable hygienic features for which Nemo Corsets are famous throughout the world.

KOPSERVICE Corsets perform the seemingly impossible by enabling all women, from very slender to extra-stout, to attain a rational "nature figure" without sacrificing one iota of comfort or hygienic safety.

The influence of this radically new system of corset-construction will be felt immediately in all the world's fashion-centres, where already the Nemo is a predominating factor.



Details of Construction
A. Right side of the corset skirt as worn.
F. Left side of corset skirt, turned back to show supporting feature.
D. The curved ends of front steels forming part of supporting feature.
B. Seam whereby corset-skirt is attached to body of corset.
C. Groin section showing how the effect of the natural figure is retained.
E. The famous Nemo "bridge" construction which avoids all pressure over the gastric region, and prevents even a "topless" corset from "digging in" at the waist-line.

For FULL Figures

These two models combine the fashion-type known as the "nature figure" with the highest development of the perfect support for which the Nemo Hygienic Corset System is famous:

No. 551 For stout women. Combines the comfort of the old short corset with the newest fashion-effects. Low bust; front steels with incurved ends, a new and clever device that gives perfect abdominal support. Very long skirt, with semi-elastic Lasticurve-Back. Of fine white coutil, sizes 22 to 36 $5.00

No. 552 KOPSERVICE CORSET, for full figures. Similar in general construction to No. 551, but with lower bust and front steels somewhat shorter below waist; wide front-gores of semi-elastic Lastikops Cloth give additional freedom for the natural figure. Of fine white coutil, sizes 22 to 36 $5.00

These are beyond question the best corsets ever made for stout women, and represent the greatest corset-values ever offered at $5.00.

KOPSERVICE construction produces practically two corsets in one.

The corset-body, in the front, being free from the influence of the corset-skirt and hose supporters, is self-adjusting and remains firmly in proper place, no matter what the attitude or pose.

The corset-skirt, hanging free from the front of the corset, with the attached hose supporters, strongly reduces the upper limbs, but is made easy and comfortable by the semi-elastic Lasticurve-Back, which provides for ample "spread" when seated.

In the models for stout figures, (Nos. 551 and 522), the abdominal support is given by the curved front steels and the converging bands, which give perfect hygienic support from underneath.

For SLENDER and MEDIUM

The construction of these corsets provides for the extreme poses of the "debutante slouch;" they give perfect hygienic support, and guard the figure against permanent loss of symmetry.

No. 561 For slender and medium figures. Practically "topless." Entire corset above waist-line is of semi-elastic Lastikops fabrics, lightly boned. Very long skirt with Lasticurve-Back. Absence of boning and lightness of material, reveal the natural lines. Suede batiste, sizes 20 to 30 $5.00

No. 562 For medium figures. Very low bust; extra-long skirt, with Lasticurve-Back. Insets of semi-elastic Lastikops Cloth, extending three inches above the waist-line and five inches below, give wonderful ease and the "natural" lines. This effect is ENTIRELY NEW. As in No. 561, the new short front gives all needed figure support. Suede batiste, in sizes 20 to 30 $5.00

These corsets represent style and hygienic values that cannot be obtained in any other corset at any price. Sold in all leading stores.

'FINE FEATHERS' WINS SUCCESS AT COLONIAL

The play at the Colonial is a play to be recommended to every young married woman in Greater Boston, and to every young woman about to be married or merely "with hopes.'

With the extra added suggestion that in every case the lady brings the "young man" along.

Especially is "Fine Feathers" urged upon every young wife, who has ever uttered the well-known saying: "I don't see why I can't have what other women have."

Mrs. Robert Reynolds was heard to use this phrase frequently.

In the Eugene Walters play, Mrs. Reynolds is the pretty and discontented young wife of a rising young chemist. They are paying for a bungalow. They should have been as happy as turtle doves, but why couldn't they have all the things that other young couples enjoyed?

Comes John Brand, interested in a big construction company, with the evil suggestion that our young chemist give his "O. K." to an inferior brand of cement to be used by Brand's company on a mammoth dam. Bob Reynolds' bit will be $40,000.

John Brand is an "old college chum." His argument is well presented. It is heard by the young wife, who sides with Brand and urges the acceptance of such easy money.

Everybody knows what can be done for $40,000 in the way of getting "what other women have."

Not to spoil your appetite, however, by telling the story here in its entirety, it may be fairly and truthfully written that in "Fine Feathers" Mr. Walters has scored again.

So much for the piece, the strength of which is increased many times by such a company as is rarely seen on the American stage in a single play. Such a galaxy of stars as H. H. Frazee has sent into Boston with "Fine Feathers," indeed, would ten years ago have supplied at least four attractions with names for the electric lights in front of the theatre.

The young chemist is Robert Edeson. His young wife is Florence Rockwell. The male tempter is none other than Wilton Lackaye. Others in the company include Rose Coughlan, Max Figman and Lydia Dickson.

Edeson, Lackaye, Figman, Rose Coghlan, Florence Rockwell and Lydia Dickson in a single play, and that play a Eugene Walters success!

Grand Opera House.

"The Jolly Girls" brought a new brand of musical entertainment to the Grand Opera House yesterday. It was burlesque with all the trimmings.

ELEPHANT ACT FOR KEITH'S IS DUE TODAY

Miss Orford's troupe of trained elephants, who were booked to head this week's big vaudeville bill at B. F. Keith's Theatre, were among the travellers snowbound in the great blizzard that swept over the Middle Atlantic States Sunday night. The elephants left Philadelphia Sunday night in a special car attached to the Federal Express. The train became stalled at Trenton and all day Monday was spent in a snowdrift. The train is due in Boston today. As a result of the delay the bill for the opening night had to be changed.

Al Reeves's spectacular farce, "A Night in an English Music Hall," presented by the original Karno Comedy Company of fourteen funmakers, easily topped the reconstructed bill. All the familiar types of such a place of amusement—the fun-loving college boy, the inebriate swell, the gay soubrette and the Terrible Turk, who wrestles all comers—pass in review before a pleased audience.

Mrs. Gene, Hughes and company present a sketch entitled "Youth," in which a grandmother appears younger than her daughter's exuberant child until she shows them what a difference dress means. Devine and Williams, as "The Traveling Salesman and the Female Drummer," have a mirth-provoking talking and singing act. Ray L. Royce presents a series of eccentric Down-East character studies. Lightner and Jordan, "those two dainty" girls, have voices that blend nicely in ragtime and ballad selections. Raymond and Bain present their comedy sketch, "Locked Out," for the first time here. Carson and Brown are clog-dancers of the real old school, and the Three Reynards, one a shapely young woman, have a sensational acrobatic act.

One of the most pleasing novelties is the motion picture of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle in the Castle Walk, Hesitation Waltz, One-Step, Maxixe and Argentine Tango.

'Fanny's First Play' Ready for Tonight

The Park Theatre was dark last evening and hundreds of playgoers were disappointed at not being able to see the performance of "Fanny's First Play," which had been announced to begin its Boston engagement there. The train containing the scenery and baggage got caught in a washout near Camden, N. J., but a performance will surely be given this evening.

BILLIE BURKE IS GREETED AT HOLLIS STREET

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

If you have never believed that woman is a perverse creature, you now have W. Somerset Maugham's "The Land of Promise" as dramatic, if not documentary, evidence that such is the case. Miss Billie Burke, who has toiled so diligently for the drama of fluffs and pretty frocks, took you over a rough journey at the Hollis last evening and dumped you into the Canadian Northwest. It was not what you could call a familiar "Billie Burke part," but Miss Burke managed to make it very real and convincing before you were sent home for the night.

Doubtless Mr. Maugham hoped to convince his public that women may be taught how to find a message of love in the mailed fist. At least that was the task laid out for his Norah Marsh, who was given to you so deliciously by Miss Burke. Strong arm methods applied to Miss Burke may seem a trifle odd to those who have followed her joyous career in the drama of sweet things for pretty girls. But she stood on both feet and met the issue squarely. There was a sympathetic note in her treatment of the unfortunate Norah Marsh that could not be resisted.

There did not seem to be much hope for the bewildered, mistreated Norah when the large-boned sister-in-law demanded of her husband that he choose between her and the delicately natured girl who had come to him because the world had no other home for her. That explains why Norah, in desperation, married Frank Taylor, an exceedingly uncultured and coarse person who needed somebody to do his washing and mending while he cleared a spot in the Canadian wilderness. Taylor's methods of breaking in a wife was not what you would call a parlor recreation, and what Norah didn't want to do, she was made to do in the best fashion of the cruel villain of an old-fashioned drama. Taylor's first day with his new wife was like a page from the history of Mexico. But the girl was conquered in both body and spirit.

And out of that ferocious beginning was started a tiny speck of love that made Norah contented with her lot and glorious in her affection for the Canadian farm. She threw away her opportunity to return to England and fell merrily in Taylor's sun-burned arms. And there you had the perversity of woman—the years of hardships imposed upon Norah only sharpened her love for the man who was her equal in no respect, except in physical strength.

The lack of splendid gowns did not rob Miss Burke of that appealing charm which radiates from her like sunshine of Spring. She was particularly attractive even in her dismal surroundings. But it was all serious work, and she directed it with the skill of an artist. The Taylor of Shelley Hull was coarse and vulgar, and left no doubt in your mind that the delicate things in love did not attract him. He was the typical pioneer of a new country.

"The Land of Promise" was strong food—and wholesome. It served Miss Burke faithfully, for it supplied her the means of getting a broader grasp upon the drama than anything she has ever done. And, by the way, she ironed and folded a shirt like a professional laundress.

Orpheum Theatre.

"The Fatal Wedding," a photo-play production by Klaw & Erlanger, was featured in the new bill at the Orpheum Theatre yesterday. This was one of a dozen other lively novelties in both vaudeville and motion picture attractions.

BILLIE BURKE, in the "Land of Promise" at the Hollis Street Theatre.

MISS ANGLIN IS SUPERB IN TWELFTH NIGHT

Good things can't come too often, and to Miss Margaret Anglin goes the credit of having brought to Boston something histrionically superb. Not only did her production of "Twelfth Night" please an audience which filled the new Cort Theatre, but the actress herself merits laurels for the stellar supporting company which played about her as stars about a star.

Shakespeare has been in such ill favor these latter days that it takes—according to the critics—something of a gambling spirit in a player to hazard a Shakesperian drama. But after last night's enthusiastic reception of "Twelfth Night," certainly Miss Anglin's enterprise can be regarded by no means as a gamble. Her artistry spells her success.

It is seldom that a great actress gathers so much high talent about her. Not a role but is entrusted to able hands. From the tender Viola down to the leanest rule, there is dramatic brains—here, there and everywhere.

Miss Anglin is Viola and her playing of the part is just what you demand—and much more. Miss Anglin, great before, is now charming, delicious, splendid. And right well did she deserve the repeated encores which came from the crowded house almost with each falling curtain.

And Sir Toby? Well, you simply had to ache with the pains of laughter to see this Sir Toby—Sidney Greenstreet. There is none better. And Sir Andrew Aguecheek—Wallace Widecombe takes him in hand and gives him plenty of life, too. Fuller Mellish is a tiptop Malvolio, and Pedro De Cordoba makes a convincing Orsino. Max Fisher is a good Sebastian.

Max Montesole is a capital clown. Lillian Thurgate is a rollicking, frolicking Maria whose very laughter is contagious. Ruth Holt Boucicault plays Olivia with rich charm.

Scollay Square Olympia.

One of the brightest features of the new bill at the Scollay Square Olympia yesterday was the Banda Roma, a group of musicians who presented a program of classical and popular numbers. This was only one of the attractive numbers in the entertainment, there being a dozen smart vaudeville novelties on the list.

Waldron's Casino.

The Rose Sydell Company began a week's engagement at Waldron's Casino Theatre yesterday. It was burlesque entertainment, with the usual assortment of pretty girls.

'The Tenderfoot' Is Bill at National

Richard Carle's comedy success "The Tenderfoot" is the bill presented at the National Theatre this week by the Morton Opera Company. The story concerns the adventures of a girl who, having been kissed by a soldier, declares she will never marry a Texas ranger. The girl is Marion Worthington. Her uncle, a professor, finally convinces her she should marry. A band of rangers appears and their colonel, Paul Winthrop, wins Marion's love.

Walter Willis is the professor. Mr. Freeborn as Colonel Winthrop, Steven Paul as Sergeant Barker and Arthur Conrad as Hop Lee are all well suited to their roles. Miss Campbell is seen as Marion Worthington, May Emery as Flora Jane Fibby and Maul Drury as Sally.

The concert program included the Three Leightons, Grace Wilson, Black Brothers, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Shaw, Willis and Emory, Conrad and Campbell and Maud Drury and others.

Gaby Deslys at the, Shubert Tonight

Gaby Deslys and the New York Winter Garden company did not open their one week's engagement at the Shubert Theatre last evening owing to the storm, which prevented the arrival of the scenery and costumes in time. Miss Deslys will positively appear tonight at the Shubert.

Gaiety Theatre.

"The Kissing Maids" was the somewhat inviting title that was hung upon the new show that invaded the Gaiety Theatre yesterday. Of course, it was burlesque, with all the smart effects that makes burlesque worth while. The comedy was refreshing and the musical numbers could not have been better handled.

'LITTLE LOST SISTER' BILL AT GLOBE THEATRE

"Little Lost Sister," a dramatization of the absorbing story by Virginia Brooks that appeared in the AMERICAN recently, is the bill this week at the Globe Theatre, succeeding "Traffic in Souls," a white slave motion picture drama.

The cast is as follows: John Boland, Charles Henshaw; Harry Boland, Harry Walker; Michael Crogan, John "Chinee" Leach; Martin Druce, Leo Dumont, Harvey Spencer, W. H. Stephenson; Carter Anson, Fred Eckhart; Tom Welcome, Arthur Weston; Jack, H. A. Strunk; Red, Edwin Spillven; Andy, Thomas Conway; Mary Randall, Gretchen Sherman; Patience Welcome, Shirley Moore; Elsie Welcome, Grace Hutchinson; Martha Welcome, Carrie LeMoyne.

This time the victim is Elsie Welcome, a country girl. Unhappy at home, she is fascinated by the attentions of a young man who promises marriage. She goes with him to Chicago. Her mother, sister and former sweetheart, a grocer in Millville, join in searching for her and she is ultimately found. The searchers are assisted by Mary Randall, the daughter of wealthy parents, who turns waitress in a cheap restaurant and has the proprietors arrested. Disguised as a stenographer, she continues the good work. The piece is entertaining, highly melodramatic and contains nothing objectionable.

Mary Randall is sympathetically acted by Miss Sherman. Mr. Leach as Michael, Messrs. Eckhart and Dumont gave capable presentations of contrasting villainy. Harry Walker, W. H. Stephenson, Grace Hutchinson, Shirley Moore and Carrie LeMoyne were equally effective.

THE DEMAND Is increasing enormously Can we tell you the Reason Why?

Purified Blood—SOLVES Most of Sickness Problems

People who have been poulticing and anointing for years and years marvel at the way S. S. S. does the work.

When you come to realize that the skin and flesh beneath are composed of a network of tiny blood vessels you solve the mystery.

There are wonderful medicinal properties in S. S. S. that follow the course of the blood stream just as naturally as the most nourishing food elements.

Thousands know it to be really a remarkable remedy. It contains one ingredient, the active purposes of which is to stimulate the tissues to the healthy selection of its own essential nutriment. And the "medicinal elements of this matchless blood purifier are just as essential to well-balanced health as the nutritious elements of the meats, grains, fats and sugars of our daily food," said a well-known physician.

Not only this, but if from the presence of some distributing poison there is a local or general interference of nutrition to cause boils, carbuncles, [illegible], and kindred troubles, S. S. S. so direct the local cells that this poison is rejected and eliminated from their presence.

Then, too, S. S. S. has such specific stimulation on these local cells as to [illegible] their mutual welfare and a proper relative assistance to each other.

Not one [illegible] of minerals or drugs is used in its preparation. Ask for S. S. S. and [illegible] insist upon having it. Sparks from "Fanny's First Play"

MRS. GILBEY—Mrs. Knox is very religious, but quite cheerful.

• • •

MR. KNOX—My daughter in Hallowell jail!

MARGARET—(Knox's daughter) All the women in Hallowell jail are somebody's daughters.

• • •

FANNY—(to one of the of the critics) You cannot learn to skate without making yourself ridiculous. The ice of life is slippery.

• • •

FANNY—All the young can do for the old is to shock them and keep them up to date.

• • •

DARLING DORA—(to Mr. Gilbey) There's no disgrace about Bobby being in jail, old dear. Besides it was all my fault. I'll own it, I took too much champagne. I was not what you might call drunk, but I was bright and a little beyond myself. As for Bobby, he was brought up too strict. When he gets loose there's no holding him. He enjoys life more than any lad I ever met.

• • •

GILBEY—We have done all we could for the boy. What more does he want?

DARLING DORA—Well, old dear, he wants me. That's about the long and short of it.

The Lesson of a Play.

"Would you marry the daughter of a woman disgraced?" asks Mrs. Martin, the queen of the counterfeiters, in "The Argyle Case."

"I would marry your daughter if she'd come to me," vigorously replies Asche Kayton, the detective who caused the mother's arrest.

This speech provokes a thrill, sometimes a shock, but that it is true to human nature was affirmed by the Rev. George J. Fisher, member of the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A. in a recent talk on eugenics.

"The typical American with the square shoulders and firm chin is just that way," declared the speaker. "He is the sort who says 'When I meet the right woman, I don't care if her father was a second story man and her mother a pickpocket. I'll ask her the big question.'"

"As a matter of fact," says Robert Hilliard, "love doesn't waste time in raking up the ashes of a dead past. Nor does heredity cut much figure in many a happy marriage. There is a lot of nonsense about the sins of the father and the inheritance of moral obliquity."

Economy—'The Limit.'

De Wolf Hopper responded on all fours at the end of the first act of "The Mikado" one night to vigorous demands for a speech. He had just begun to regale the audience with his feelings about the matter, when the carbons in a spot light sputtered and then flashed. Maybe it was a put up job; maybe it wasn't, but at any rate, it gave Hopper his chance.

"Stingy thing," he said, looking up at the electrician.

"You know," he continued, "that electrician is so stingy that he looks over the rims of his spectacles to save the glass."

Chestnuts.

Richard Carle told this one to a circle at the Brewster the other night.

The gentleman who had been dining and "wining," not wisely, but too well, was pursuing a rather erratic course homeward. Suddenly round a corner of the street came a fire engine in haste, sparks belching from its chimney and a warm glow issuing from the open furnace door.

The gentleman halted and waved his umbrella.

"Hi!" he shouted, "hi!" But the engine dashed onward.

"Hi!" he said again. The engine rushed by, almost upsetting him in its headlong course.

Then the gentleman turned round and glared reproachfully after it. "Ver' well," he said thickly, "ver' well, old sport! Keep yer old chestnuts."

The Dear Fool

The Story of the Love of a Woman of 40 for a Boy of 22

Novelized by

A. A. Waterbury

From the Broadway play by H. V. Esmond now playing in New York.—Copyright, 1914, by International News Service.

"OH, well, it doesn't matter what I said exactly; but I did say it, by Jupiter! And there it is, what does one do when this happens?"

"Where will you go?" asked Betty.

"I haven't thought."

She smiled. "I'd better look out a station as well as a train."

"I'd better go to town. It'll look better for the servants if I'm hurriedly called to town. My flat's shut up, but I can go to the Carlton till I have time to turn round. I say, this is awful, ye know—so undignified being bundled out of a house because you don't approve of its mistress' matrimonial arrangements!"

"I wish I was going with you, Eggy," said Betty, as if unwilling to let the words pass her lips.

"Do you really?" he asked, and a little flame leaped into his eyes.

"It'll be awful for me here when you're gone." Betty's eyes travelled down the vista of gray days that must come when Eggy's strength was not there to uphold her.

"Yes, I expect it will. You and the boys had better go to Margate."

"Oh, Eggy, Eggy! You're trying to pretend that you think that nothing that's happened matters. That everything can go as it used to be."

Betty looked at him with gentle appreciation of all he was ready to ignore and to forgive. Then she looked far, far away into the land of "It might all have been so different," and there was a long silence between them.

"You are trying to do that, aren't you, Eggy?" asked Betty at last.

"Yes, I suppose so," confessed the man simply.

"But it can never be, Eggy—we both know that in our heart of hearts."

"Yes, we both know that, Betty," said Sir Egbert.

"We can't make light of sin—and nothing can ever be the same again," moaned Betty, in such a death-in-life tone of hopelessness that all the man's fighting spirit roused against her supine yielding to her fate.

A MAN'S WAY.

He spoke with the impatience a strong man always feels for the morbid spirit that drives to self-inflicted torture. "Do you suppose I have never sinned?"

There was a quick slam of the door. Youth would be served, and Bill came into the room to report his great discovery that was to transcend even the invention of a patent cork that refused to be invented.

"Mummy! Mummy!" cried his high young voice eagerly. "Mummy, Jack and I have been evolving a way to keep the roof over our heads when the Marchioness cuts us off—and we've done it!"

"Have you?" asked Sir Egbert with never a thought of what that idea was to mean to him.

"Yes," said the lad with serene self-assurance in the originality and feasibility of his idea. "Marry Eggy and we'll all go and live under his!"

Even before her son, she collapsed into a pitiful little huddled figure and sobbed wildly. "No, no——"

Eggy covered the retreat of her self-control.

"Cut back and tell Jack it's practically settled," said he.

"Right, oh! How ripping!"

And youth having been served—Bill dashed off again, punctuating his departure by a slam of the door.

And now the man's voice was tender and low just as a woman would have the voice of her lover be—and it was strong and firm, too, as it is best of all for the voice of a lover to be.

"Betty, oh, my Betty, dear! Don't cry, don't cry. Together—together is the best way out. We'll fight this through together, dear heart, you and I, dear, and God will help us to get things straight. And we've going to be so happy—so happy—that the old pain won't count, in the end. . . . Heaven and earth, it's 1 o'clock, and I'm still here. Ethel will be sending for the police! . . . Betty, dear, don't cry, just as I'm going to Margate. How can I go and pack up if you cry? . . . We won't say anything more about anything now, but today's Friday. Do you think you can get ready on Tuesday, you and the boys? I'll get you all rooms on the front. I'll order fine weather and all sorts of things. And if Margate don't open out a new life for us all I don't know what will. . . . Can you be ready by Tuesday dearest?"

"I'll try, sobbed Betty.

"Bless you! Oh, my dearest dear!"

And he gently touched her bowed head and went quietly from the room, leaving her crying softly to herself on the couch.

Betty ran to the door. Eggy was just starting up the stairway.

"Eggy," she called. "Eggy, aren't you going—to—kiss me good-bye—until Tuesday?"

THE END.

The Woman Thou Gavest Me

HALL CAINE'S GREATEST STORY

THE NARRATIVE OF MARY O'NEILL
FOURTH PART
I FALL IN LOVE

Copyright, 1912, by Hearst's Magazine. Copyright, 1913, by Hearst's Magazine. Copyright in Great Britain. Copyright, 1913, by J. B. Lippincott Company.

It was he. I went out to the balcony and there he was on the lawn below. The light of the room was on him and never before had I seen his strong face so full of agitation.

"Come down," he said. "I have something to say to you."

I could not resist him. He was my master. I had to obey.

When I reached the bottom of the stairway he took my hand, and I did not know whether it was his hand or mine that was trembling. He led me across the lawn to the seat in the shrubbery that almost faced my windows. In the soft and soundless night I could hear his footsteps on the turf and the rustle of my dress over the grass.

We sat, and for a moment he did not speak. Then with a passionate rush of words he said:

"Mary, I hadn't meant to say what I'm going to say now, but I can't do anything else. You are in trouble, and I can't stand by and see you so ill-used. I can't and I won't!"

I tried to answer him, but my throat was fluttering and I could not speak.

"It's only a few days before I ought to sail, but they may be enough in which to do something, and if they're not I'll postpone the expedition or put it off, or send somebody in my place, for go away I cannot and leave you like this."

WANTED TO HELP.

I tried to say that he should not do that whatever happened to me, but still I could not speak.

"Mary, I want to help you. But I can only do so if you give me the right to do it. Nobody must tell me I'm a meddler, butting in where I have no business. There are people enough about you who would be only too ready to do that—people related to you by blood and by law."

I knew what he was coming to, for his voice was quivering in my ears like the string of a bow.

"There is only one sort of right, Mary, that is above the right of blood and you know what that is."

My eyes were growing so dim that I could hardly see the face which was so close to mine.

"Mary," he said, "I have always cared for you. Surely you know that. By the saints of God I swear there has never been any other girl for me, and now there never will be. Perhaps I ought to have told you this before, and I wanted to do so when I met you in Rome. But it didn't seem fair, and I couldn't bring myself to do it."

His passionate voice was breaking; I thought my heart was breaking also.

"All I could do I did, but it came to nothing; and now you are here and are unhappy, and though it is so late I want to help you, to rescue you, to drag you out of this horrible situation before I go away. Let me do it. Give me the right of one you care enough for to allow him to speak in your behalf."

I knew what that meant. I knew that I was tottering on the very edge of a precipice, and to save myself I tried to think of Father Dan, of Martin's mother, of my own mother, and since I could not speak I struggled to pray.

"Don't say you can't. If you do I shall go away a sorrowful man. I shall go at once too—tonight or tomorrow morning at latest, for my heart bleeds to look at you and I can't stay here any longer to see you suffer. It is not torture to me—it's hell!"

And then the irrepressible, overwhelming, inevitable moment came. Martin laid hold of my right hand and said in his tremulous voice:

"Mary . . . Mary . . . I . . . I love you!"

I could hear no more. I could not think or pray or resist any longer. The bitter struggle was at an end. Before I knew what I was doing I was dropping my head on to his breast and he with a cry of joy was gathering me in his arms.

NOTHING ELSE COUNTED.

I was his. He had taken his own. Nothing counted in the presence of our love. To be only we two together—that was everything. The world and the world's laws, the Church and the Canons of the Church were blotted out, forgotten, lost.

For some moments I hardly breathed. I was only conscious that over my head Martin was saying something that seemed to come to me with all the deep and wonderful whispers of his heart.

"Then it's true! It's true that you love me! Yes, it's true! It's true! No one shall hurt you again. Never again! No, by the Lord God!"

And then suddenly—as suddenly as the moment of intoxication had come to me—I awoke from my delirium. Some little thing awakened me. I hardly know what it was. Perhaps it was only the striking of the cuckoo clock in my room.

"What are we doing?" I said.

Everything had rolled back on me—my marriage, Father Dan's warning, my promise to Martin's mother.

"Where are we?" I said.

"Hush! Don't speak," said Martin. "Let us think of nothing tonight—except our love."

"Don't say that," I answered. "We are not free to love each other," and then, trying to liberate myself from his encircling arms I cried:

"God help me! God forgive me!"

"Wait!" said Martin, holding me a moment longer. "I know what you feel and I'm not the man to want a girl to wrong her conscience. But there's one question I must ask you. If you were free, could you love me then?"

"Don't ask me that. I must not answer it."

"You must and shall," said Martin. "Could you?"

"Yes."

"That's enough for me—enough for tonight anyway. Have no fear. All shall be well. Go to your room now."

He raised me to my feet and led me back to the foot of the balcony, and there he kissed my hand and let me go.

"Good night!" he said softly.

"Good night!" I answered.

"God bless you, my pure, sweet girl."

At the next moment I was in my room, lying face down on my bed—seeing no hope on any side, and sobbing my heart out for what might have been but for the hard law of my religion and the cruel tangle of my fate.

NOSE AND HEAD STOPPED UP FROM COLD OR CATARRH, OPEN AT ONCE

My Cleansing, Healing Balm Instantly Clears Nose, Head and Throat—Stops Nasty Catarrhal Discharges. Dull Headache Goes.

Try "Ely's Cream Balm."

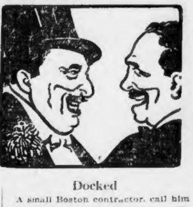
Get a small bottle, anyway, just to try it—Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; dullness and headache disappear. By morning! the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils; penetrates and heals the inflamed, swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat; clears the air passages; stops nasty discharges and a feeling of cleansing, soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lay awake tonight struggling for breath, with head stuffed; nostrils closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its running nose, foul mucus dropping into the throat and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith—just once—in "Ely's Cream Balm" and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear.

Chatter You Hear in Hotel Lobbies



Getting Back.

A Back Bay physician recently told the following story: An enterprising dealer sent him a box of cigars, which had not been ordered, together with a bill for six dollars. The accompanying letter stated that, "I have ventured to send these on my own initiative, being convinced that you will appreciate their exquisite flavor."

In due course the doctor replied. "You have not asked me for a consultation, but I venture to send you two prescriptions, being convinced that you will be quite as satisfied with them as I am with your cigars. As my charge for a prescription is three dollars that makes us quits."

Professional Ethics.

Rev. Ernest Wray Oneal was discussing church attendance with one of his parishioners, a doctor.

"It's hard work to get people into church," declared the minister.

"But it's easier to do that than to get them into heaven," said the doctor.

"Yes," retorted Rev. Mr. Oneal, "We ministers can only point the way; when it comes to getting people there we have to fall back on the doctors."

The Wrong Candidate.

A candidate seeking a nomination in the primaries was husting about his ward, when a seedy looking citizen approached him, inquiring: "Mister, don't you want to save a life?" meaning that the seedy looking person desired the price of a drink of liquor.

"No, indeed," replied the candidate. "I'm not in the life-saving business. I'm an undertaker."

Docked

A small Boston contractor, call him Smith, is the meanest man on earth. For the most trivial offence he makes reductions from his workmen's wages.

Only the other day a bricklayer who was repairing a tower slipped and fell off the high scaffolding. Luckily for him, however, a friendly nail caught in his clothing and held him safely till he was rescued by his comrades.

It so chanced that Smith was passing at the time. When on pay day the bricklayer received his wages it was accompanied by the following note:

"Time stopped, 15 minutes for hanging on nail—10 cents."

Not All in Him

"Thomas," said the mother, severely, "some one has taken a big piece of ginger cake out of the pantry."

Tommy blushed guiltily.

"Oh, Thomas!" she exclaimed. "I didn't think it was in you!"

"It ain't all," replied Tommy. "Part of it's in Elsie."

A Grand Nation

An old Scottish gardener was showing to a tourist the beauties of the loch and of the little village of Duddingston. It was evening, and as he expatiated on the lovely scene and on the glories of the country the moon rose over a hill. The old man stopped short in the middle of a sentence and gazed at the moon in admiration. Then he turned to the tourist and said:

"There's a moon for ye! I tell ye, mon, we're a grand nation!"

More Truth Than Poetry

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

Better Than Radium.

The discovery that clothing causes cancer is encouraging. There must be less and less of it as the fashions proceed on their relentless way.

There Don't Seem to Be Much Room Left for Us People.

Concerning the fly, we learn further that:

"One fly occupies a quarter of an inch-wide, high and thick. On this basis it would make 200,000 flies to the cubic foot. They would occupy 27,201,388,032,000,000,000,000 divided by 200,000 equals 13,600,694,016,000,000 cubic feet, or about 800,000 cubic miles."

We'd Like to See This Tried.

"At least three nights a week," says a European suffragist, "a husband ought to utterly forget that he is married, throw aside every thought of domesticity and go forth to battle with his fellows for another woman's smile." Then he could spend the rest of his married life trying to square himself.

YOU CAN'T EARN MONEY WHEN YOU'RE LAID UP

There are a lot of people in this town who cannot afford to be sick. Perhaps none of you feel that you can, but certainly some of you can't, for as soon as you are sick, your wakes stop and worry and debts begin to pile up. The sensible thing for you to do, as soon as you feel run-down and worn out, no matter what the cause, is to take something just as quick as you can to build up strength and health. Make yourself more comfortable and provide against serious sickness.

We don't believe there is any other medicine made that will do as much towards saving your health and thus helping you save your money as Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion. It is a medicine that gets right at the trouble and relieves it by toning the nerves, enriching the blood, and giving new strength and health to the whole body. It doesn't do this by means of alcohol or habit-forming drugs, because it contains none. Its strength and health-giving power is due to pure Olive Oil and the Hypophosphites, long endorsed by successful physicians, the one for its food value, the other for its tonic value. Here, for the first time, they are combined, and the result is a real nerve, blood and body-building medicine—a real strengthener that we are proud to tell you about. You don't need to hesitate in using it, because if it doesn't do all we say it will and satisfy you in every way, it will cost you nothing. If it doesn't make you strong and well again, come back and get your money. It will be given to you without word or question.

Sold only at the Rexall Stores, $1.00, Liggett's Washington and Avon Sts., Summer and South Sts., Washington and School Sts., Boston; Brockton, 135 Main St.; Brookline, Coolidge Corner; Haverhill, 143 Merrimac St., Railroad Square; Salem, 226 Essex St.; Lawrence, 179 Essex St., 379 Essex St.; Lowell, 67 Merrimac St.; Newport, Thames St.; Pawtucket, 220 Main St.; Providence, 200 Westminster St., 225 Weybosset St., Dorrance St., Snow St., Olneyville; Worcester, 10 Front St.

When There's No Other Place to Go.

A new play is running in a suburban theatre, and the following sign appears over the door in bright letters:

BLANK THEATRE
THE LAST RESORT.

Now the manager is wondering how to arrange the sign to take the jinx off.

Kipling May Be Right.

The waitresses arrested by the Chicago policewomen say they would have been better treated by male policemen.

ONLY SIXTEEN, GIRL VERY SICK

Tells How She Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

New Orleans, La.—"I take pleasure in writing these lines to express my gratitude to you. I am only 16 years old and work in a tobacco factory. I have been a very sick girl but I have improved wonderfully since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am now looking fine and feeling a thousand times better."—MISS AMELIA JAQUILLARD, 3961 Tchoupitoulas St., New Orleans, La.

St. Clair, Pa.—"My mother was alarmed because I was troubled with suppression and had pains in my back and side, and severe headaches, I had pimples on my face, my complexion was sallow, my sleep was disturbed, I had nervous spells, was very tired and had no ambition. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has worked like a charm in my case and has regulated me. I worked in a mill among hundreds of girls and have recommended your medicine to many of them."—MISS ESTELLA MAGUIRE, 110 Thwing St., St. Clair, Pa.

There is nothing that teaches more than experience. Therefore, such letters from girls who have suffered and were restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be a lesson to others. The same remedy is within reach of all.

No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself if she does not try this famous medicine made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health.

BROTHER-IN-LAW TELLS HOW MRS. RANTOUL CONFESSED LOVE FOR RUMRILL

NEAL RANTOUL DESCRIBES EARLY MORNING CONFERENCE AFTER HURRIED CALL.

played not the slightest nervousness or excitement. He anwered each question with deliberation. He used the word "Sir" in addressing the attorney occasionally.

When asked to tell how his love for Mrs. Rantoul developed, he paused pensively and glanced at the court stenographer.

MRS. RANTOUL ABSENT.

He said "neither discused it, but both felt it." Mrs. Rantoul was not present to hear "Chippie" Rumrill describe his affection for her, having been notified that he would take the stand after the recess, she remained in the consultation room with her father. Mr. Rantoul sat in the centre of the courtroom, his chair in plain view of Rumrill, from whom he never removed his eyes. Rumrill did not glance his way. He kept his gaze on Attorney Hunt. Mr. Rantoul's face was a study while the man who won his wife's affections, and who calmly admitted it under oath in open court, was describing how it came about and how he corresponded for years with Lois Burnett Rantoul, and lavished presents upon her.

Throughout the testimony of Mr. Rumrill, which lasted exactly thirty minutes, there awa profound silence in the corutroom. Everybody wanted to catch every word, and they were all intent. One of the most striking features of Mr. Rumrill's testimony was the fact that he referred to some of the gifts given to Mr. Rantoul as "commission." He was not asked to define what he meant by this while on the witness stand, but it was learned in the corridors from those concerned in the case that when he used this term he referred to presents which he brought back from Europe, notably the silk stockings from Paris, which Mrs. Rantoul had asked him to buy for her when he went abroad.

Mr. Rumrill was not cross-examined. When Attorney Hunt finished with him Attorney Proctor said: "No questions."

Mr. Rumrill, relieved, left the courtroom by passing in front of the bench, so close to Mr. Rantoul that they almost brushed elbows, and through the judge's lobby. It would have been difficult for him to leave by the ordinary exit, which was thronged. He was out and away in a jiffy. His testimony in full follows:

CHIPPIE RUMRILL'S STORY; HIS LOVE FOR MRS. RANTOUL

Q.—What is your name? A.—Chester Chapin Rumrill.

Q.—Are you married? A.—No.

Q.—Got any family? A.—Mother and two sisters.

Q.—You live at Springfield? A.—No, they do. I live in Boston much of the time.

Q.—Have you any regular occupation? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—What is it? A.—Well, I call myself a trustee.

Q.—Do you know Edward L. Rantoul? A.—Yes.

Q.—How long have you known him? A.—Since 1898.

Q.—That was your freshman year at Harvard? A.—Yes.

Q.—Were you classmates? A.—Yes.

Q.—Was Edward Rantoul a friend of yours? A.—Yes.

Q.—How long? A.—Until 1911.

Q.—You belong to the same college societies? A.—Some of them.

Q.—And the same clubs outside? A.—Yes.

Q.—How much did you see of Edward Rantoul at college? A.—A great deal.

Q.—How intimate were you? A.—Very intimate.

Q.—Ever sleep in his room at college? A.—Yes

Q.—How intimate were you after leaving college? A.—For the first six months I didn't se him much. I was at Newport.

Q.—And later you became employed by the Boston & Albany Railroad in Boston A.—Yes.

VERY CLOSE FRIENDS.

Q.—And how long did that continue? A.—I worked there till September, 1900.

Q.—After you came to Boston did you see much of Edward Rantoul, following your college course? A.—Yes.

Q.—How intimate were you? A.—I should say as close as friends could be.

Q.—When did you first meet Mrs. Edward L. Rantoul? A.—In 1894 or 1895, I'm not sure which it was.

Q.—You met her long before her marriage, didn't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—How did you meet her? A.—Through her brother, Joe. Q.—The brother who died? A.—Yes.

Q.—Were you present at the marriage of Edward Rantoul? A.—Yes.

Q.—Were you an usher at the wedding? A.—Yes.

Q.—Now, between their marriage and 1911 did you see much of them? A.—I saw a great of them.

Q.—Where and how? A.—Around Boston.

Q.—Did you go to their house? A.—Yes.

Q.—Take meals with them? A.—Yes.

Q.—Stay with them over night? A.—Yes.

Q.—Frequently? A.—Yes.

Attorney Proctor—"Speak louder, Mr. Hunt."

Q.—Where did you see them, at Beverly Farms or Elmwood? A.—In both places.

Q.—How much did you see Mrs. Rantoul in 1910 and 1911? A.—A great deal.

Q.—Did your relations with her ever pass beyond friendship?

Mr. Rumrill paused briefly and then said, with a tilt of his head: "Yes, sir."

Q.—When did they change? A.—That's very hard to state. It's difficult to fix the date.

Q.—Try to do the best you can.

NO DECLARATION.

Mr. Rumrill thought long and hard. He glanced at the court stenographer, who was busily writing under his eye. Then he said: "I should say, in 1910."

RANTOUL'S BROTHER QUOTES HEAVEN-SENT LOVE STORY

Neal Rantoul, Boston and Beverly banker and clubman, one of the six notable Rantoul brothers, told how his sister-in-law talked about her "Heaven-sent — divine — irresistible love" for "Chippie" Rumrill at the famous dawn-conference between the Neal and Edward Rantoul families at Beverly Farms in the Summer of 1911.

Neal Rantoul said:

"She (Lois Rantoul) was told that her mother love for the children should dissuade her from doing what she threatened. She said that the children would soon forget her. She said that other children had lived to go through the same thing. She referred to her own childhood."

A little later Neal Rantoul testified that his sister-in-law declared that if they prevented her from "enjoying this great happiness she would make Edward's life a hell."

ROUSED FROM SLEEP.

Neal Rantoul's account of being summoned, with his wife, to the family council on Lois Rantoul's case was terse but graphic. It was 4 o'clock in the morning. The Neal Rantouls were asleep. Their telephone rang. Edward L. Rantoul was on the line.

"He told us to hurry," said Neal, as Lois was on the point of leaving the house to join Rumrill. We dressed and arrived there in about ten minutes."

RANTOUL RECALLED.

In spite of the rain the courtroom was filled long before proceedings began at 9:30. The announcement that "Chippie" Rumrill, the Springfield millionaire, would take the stand attracted a capacity gallery. The spectators were, as usual, nearly all women.

Edward L. Rantoul was recalled at the outset of the hearing to answer certain direct questions which Attorney Hunt forgot to ask him yesterday.

Q.—Did you bring a present back from Panama for Mrs. Rantoul? A.—Yes, a kimona.

Q.—That is a sort of a fancy wrapper? A.—Yes, it was a Chinese wrapper.

Q.—Did you buy her a birthday present? A.—I did.

Q.—When is her birthday? A.—On May 26.

Q.—Did you give her that present on that birthday? A.—No.

Q.—Why not? A.—Because she ran away before I could give it to her.

Q.—Where are the Mr. and Mrs. Richardsons, whose names figured here? A.—They are on their way back from Bermuda.

Mr. Rantoul was then excused and returned to his counsel's table.

Mrs. Rantoul entered the courtroom just then. She took a piece of ice from a tumbler filled with cracked ice at her end of the counsel table. She was accompanied by a sister of her step-mother, Mrs. Edward Burnett. Mrs. Burnett and her sister have been Mrs. Rantoul's constant companions during the trial. Mrs. Burnett has been absent the past two days.

Immediately after the testimony of Mr. Rantoul, Attorney Thomas Hunt had three additional witnesses for the husband sworn in. They were Mr. and Mrs. Neal Rantoul and Mrs. William Rantoul. Neal Rantoul was the first one called. He is a tall young man, with a striking resemblance to Charles F. Choate, Jr., in size, features and manner. He is one of the older of the six Rantoul brothers and is a prominent Boston banker. He is one of the leading clubmen of the city.

Q.—Where were you living in the Summer of 1911? A.—At Beverly Farms. We returned from abroad in June.

Q.—And you and your wife and daughter were stopping at Beverly Farms? A.—Yes.

HAPPY AND CONGENIAL.

Q.—What were your relations with your brother and his wife? A.—We saw them a great deal, especially in the Summer, and more or less in the Winter.

Q.—What did you observe about their relations? A.—I observed that they were very happy and congenial—everything was running smoothly.

Q.—When did their differences first come to your attention? A.—On Sunday, July 16, 1911.

Q.—Where were you at the time? A.—Somewhere on my place.

Q.—What happened? My wife looked for me and asked me to talk with——

Attorney Proctor—Don't be too strenuous about private conversations. State what she did.

Attorney Hunt—Did she find you? Mr. Rantoul—Yes.

Q.—When was that? A.—Three o'clock in the afternoon.

Q.—Did anything happen later that night? A.—Yes, we received a telephone call at 4 o'clock in the morning. It was still dark.

Q.—That was Monday morning? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you were in bed upstairs, asleep? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you answer the phone? A.—Yes.

Q.—Who was on the other end of the phone? A.—My brother Edward.

Q.—What did he say? A.—My brother asked me to come with my wife to his house. He told us to hurry, as Lois was on the point of leaving the house to join Rumrill. We dressed and arrived there in about ten minutes.

Q.—What was your brother's condition? A.—He was in a state of collapse. He couldn't talk much. He was pretty near all in.

Q.—What was Mrs. Rantoul's condition? A.—She was very much collected. She knew what she was doing and saying.

Q.—Did you four have a talk? A.—Yes.

Q.—How long did it last? A.—About two and one-half hours.

Q.—State the substance of that talk, Mr. Rantoul? A.—The talk led to——

Attorney Proctor—I object.

Witness—We tried to talk friendly——

Attorney Proctor—I object.

Attorney Hunt—You can't state it in that way, Mr. Rantoul. Just tell the substance of what was said.

Mr. Rantoul (embarrassed)—I don't quite understand how you want me to tell this.

Attorney Hunt—Simply state what was said, without your personal comment.

Mr. Rantoul—We started in to try——

Attorney Proctor—I object.

Attorney Hunt—You can't say it that way, either, Mr. Rantoul.

Judge Hardy—Just give the talk.

Mr. Rantoul—Mrs. Rantoul said, "This great love—this Heaven-sent, divine love—came into my life unsought. It is an irresistible love. Rumrill has brought out the best, the most intellectual side of my nature. I cannot resist it. I must go with him and satisfy this great love."

GAVE HER TALK.

Q.—Did Mrs. Rantoul say that? A.—I am giving you her talk.

Mrs. Rantoul, from her seat at counsel's table, leaned forward, eager to catch every syllable. She appeared to be trying to suppress a feeling of amusement. She did not conceal a faint smile that played about her lips and which occasionally threatenedd to become more open as the witness testified.

Attorney Hunt—Go on. Tell us what else was said, Mr. Rantoul.

A.—Lois said she was fond of Edward. She said she had loved him. She said they had been happy together and that she was sorry for him. She said that Rumrill needed her more than Edward. Then the question of the children—and of the family name and honor came up——

Attorney Proctor—Wait a moment, please. Just leave out the family honor and comment and state what was said.

Q.—Was the subject of the children brought up? A.—Yes. She was told that her mother's love for the children should dissuade her from doing what she threatened. She said other children had lived to go through the same thing and she referred to her own childhood. She said she would settle her own property on the children. Rumrill, she said, had enough money for both.

Q.—Have you now told us all of the conversation?

A.—She was most set——

Attorney Proctor—Pardon me—no opinions.

Q.—What else was said?

A.—She said that if we persisted in the plan to have Edward and myself to go to Salem and meet Rumrill on his way back from Maine and prevent her from seeing him first, she would leave the house then and there and join him. She insisted on seeing Rumrill first.

Q.—Alone? A.—Yes, alone.

Q.—Did she say anything about the future? A.—Yes, she said Edward would get along, and the children would get along, and Edward's sisters could look out for their up-bringing. As to her own sister, she said that if we prevented her from enjoying this great happiness she would make Edward's life a hell. He would be sorry till he released her.

WAS GREATLY EXCITED.

Q.—What more was said about Rumrill? A.—She was asked how she could go to Salem, when she threatened to go, and she answered that she could hire a carriage at Newton's livery stable.

Q.—Describe her manner, tone and demeanor, throughout that talk. A.—She was very much excited when she learned of our plan for Edward and myself to go first to meet Rumrill, but after that plan was abandoned she became calmer. She settled down to a general discussion of the situation.

Q.—Did you have any talk with Charles F. Choate, Jr.? A.—Yes; I told him I had a matter of great importance to discuss with him. He came to my office.

SAYS LOIS TOLD HIM HEAVEN-SENT LOVE WAS UNSOUGHT AND IRRESISTIBLE.

Q.—What was said?

Attorney Proctor—How is that relevant?

Attorney Hunt—We will show that Mr. Neal Rantoul employed Mr. Choate as counsel for his brother in this case.

Cross-examined by Mr. Proctor, witness said he was forty-four years old and that he had become hard of hearing within a year. He was asked if he had gone over his testimony with any one before, and said, "Yes, with myself, perhaps a hundred times." He added that he had made memoranda. He was asked, "Do you remember anything in the conversation on the morning of July 17 favorable to Mrs. Rantoul?"

A.—The only thing was the fact that she decided not to run away.

Questioned further on that point, he said, "She probably said many things that were favorable, but I don't remember them."

Q.—Did Mrs. Rantoul say that you and Edward would go to Salem to stop Rumrill? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you ever talk to her after that? A.—Yes, I was at dinner at their home once in September.

Q.—Did you ever talk to her on the train? A.—Yes.

Q.—Under what circumstances A.—I discovered her unexpectedly.

SOUNDED REASONABLE.

Q.—Did you tell Mrs. Rantoul at that time that Edward was acting like fury? A.—It is very possible.

Q.—Did you tell Mrs. Rantoul you would try to see what you could do with Edward? A.—Probably I did, as that sounds reasonably.

said." I didn't know anything about the subject till next morning. Then Mrs. Neal Rantoul told me.

Q.—Did you see Mrs. Rantoul after the operation and before Edward went to Panama A.—Yes.

Q.—Did she speak of her husband? A.—Yes. She said she was very sorry for Edward, very fond of him, and that she had done wrong. She said he could not forgive her. I asked her if she had asked him to forgive her. She said she had, but that he could not. She said if it were a woman it would be different, but it is a man, and a man can never forget these things. She added that that he was discussing it all the time. She said he was talking too much about it, and that he could not keep off the subject. She said she deserved it, but felt she was not able to bear it then.

Q.—Did you discuss the children? A.—Yes, I told her I hoped the children would not be sent back and forth because that would be hard on them. She said that would be arranged simply enough, that she could have the children during school in Winter, and that Edward could have them in the Summer at Beverly Farms.

Cross-examined by Attorney Proctor, Mrs. Rantoul said that she heard Mrs. Rantoul complain because Edward went to bed too early.

Q.—Then there was a little spite mixed with their happiness. A.—I don't understand.

Judge Hardy—"Spite with happiness." The witness did not answer.

Mr. Proctor got her to say that "Lois told me something about Edward pushing her head up, but I didn't quite understand it."

Q.—So she told you about Edward's pushing her head up, did she? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did she say anything else? A.—Yes, she said he had not forgiven her and could not and that he talked incessantly about it.

Q.—Talked every day? A.—No, not as often as that.

'ABSOLUTELY HAPPY," AS HUSBAND'S SISTER SAW THEM

Mrs. Neal Rantoul then took the stand. She said that the relations between the Rantouls had been absolutely happy until July, 1911, and that she first learned of anything that would mar their happiness on Sunday, July 16.

She said Edward Rantoul came to her house very much upset and hardly knew what he was doing. She told of being roused out at 4 o'clock in the morning to go to the Rantoul home.

Q.—What was Mrs. Rantoul's manner? A.—Very theatrical.

Q.—How did Mr. Rantoul act? A.—He was upset and sickly.

Q.—What did Mrs. Rantoul say? A.—She said: "If you will not let Rumrill come to see me from Salem, I will leave and join him. My family means nothing to me. My religion means nothing to me. Mr. Rantoul's sisters will bring up the children. I am sorry for Edward. I respect him, and am fond of him, but I must go to Rumrill."

Q.—Did you say anything about the children? A.—Yes. She said: "I guess they can get along. Others have."

Q.—Did you say anything about her social future? A.—Yes, but I don't remember her answer.

Q.—Did you say anything about money? A.—Yes. She said she would settle her money on the children, because Rumrill had enough for two.

There followed a secret session "in camera" around the judge's bench. Testimony was given in a whisper.

Cross-examined by Mr. Proctor, Mrs. Neal Rantoul was asked:

Q.—Was it your desire to help the Rantouls? A.—It was.

Q.—You said Mrs. Rantoul's manner was theatrical that morning? What do you mean? A.—It seemed to me insincere and like acting.

Q.—How's that? A.—The way she used her voice, as if on the stage.

Q.—Was she acting when she threatened to leave home? A.—No, she seemed more in earnest then.

Q.—You say the Rantouls were absolutely happy for seven years? A.—Absolutely.

Q.—Did Mrs. Rantoul once say that Edward had gone away, threatening suicide? A.—Not to me.

INDIGNANT DENIAL.

Q.—Did you tell her to let him go? A.—Certainly not.

Q.—Don't you remember saying to her that it was partially Edward's fault in the past? A.—(Indignantly) I never said such a thing. I don't know what you mean.

Q.—Didn't Mrs. Rantoul tell you of their unhappiness while Edward was in Panama? A.—She did not.

Q.—Wasn't the way he had treated her talked about between you. A.—Never.

Q.—Did you ever remonstrate with Edward about his actions toward his wife? A.—Yes, I told him to give her more peace.

Q.—What did you mean by that? A.—I referred to his lengthy discussions with her, and keeping her awake at night talking about their troubles.

Q.—Did you say anything about their dissimilarity of tastes to anyone? A.—Not that I remember.

The next witness was Mrs. William R. Rantoul, daughter of William [illegible] Driver, treasurer of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Q.—Did Mrs. Rantoul ever complain to you in 1909 about her husband? A.—Nothing serious.

Q.—Were you at Beverly Farms on July 16, 1911? A.—Yes, I was a guest at the Rantoul home. I was surprised to find Edward there. I was told that he was on a cruise.

Q.—Did you sit with them at the table? A.—Yes

Q.—What was the manner of Mr. and Mrs. Rantoul as you observed it? A.—It appeared strained and distant.

Attorney Proctor objected to this answer, and Attorney Hunt said: "That is not an opinion." The answer was allowed.

Q.—Were the children at the table? A.—Yes.

Q.—State what you heard A.—I heard Mrs. Rantoul say "That's my long distance call now. You'd better come, Edward, and hear what is EDWARD L. RANTOUL, as he appeared leaving court after his testimony against his wife's petition for divorce. Rantoul made a general denial of all of his wife's charges of cruelty.

TOBACCO HABIT

A very interesting book has been published on tobacco habit—how to conquer it quickly and easily. It tells the dangers of excessive smoking, chewing, snuff using, etc., and explains how nervousness, irritability, sleeplessness, weak eyes, stomach troubles and numerous other disorders may be eliminated through stopping self-poisoning by tobacco. The man who has written this book wants to genuinely help all who have become addicted to tobacco habit and says there's no need to suffer that awful craving or restlessness which comes when one tries to quit voluntarily. This is no mind-cure or temperance sermon tract, but plain, common sense, clearly set forth. The author will send it free, postpaid, in plain wrapper. Write, giving name and full address—a postcard will do. Address: Edward J. Woods, 534 Sixth ave., 534 Y, New York City. Keep this advertisement, it is likely to prove the best news you ever read in this journal.

WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

May Help You if Lungs Are Affected

Proper diet, fresh air and temperate habits are beneficial to persons suffering from Lung Trouble; but in a great many instances reports show that the addition of a medicine for this affection has materially helped in bringing about recovery. For more than fifteen years Eckman's Alterative, a medicine for Throat and Lung Troubles, has accomplished good results. Read what it did in this case.—

Madison Lake, Minn.

"Gentlemen: In December, 1908, March, 1909, and September, 1909, I was taken with hemorrhage of the lungs which confined me several weeks each time to my bed. My doctor advised me to go West. In November I started for Denver, Col. After my arrival I met Michael Brady, who, upon learning of my condition, urged me to take Eckman's Alterative. I kept on taking the medicine and improved fast. In March, 1910, I returned home. I am entirely well, have a good appetite and sleep well. When I left Denver my weight was 130 pounds. I now weigh 165, my normal weight. I thank God and your Alterative for my health."

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious for severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Contains no narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. Sold by leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

32,000 MILES OF BASEBALL NEAR AN END

Special Correspondence of the Boston American.

DAMON RUNYON

PARIS, Feb. 22.—It is said that the profit of the around-the-world baseball trip of Giants and White Sox will be around [illegible] to Harry [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the perils of the deep and the searching eye of Dudley Field Malone and his baggage-bursting accomplices at the port of New York, with a fearless heart.

When they reach New York on March 6, the voyagers will have travelled something like 32,000 miles. They have been in so many foreign countries, and are so familiar with various tongues that they fully expect to be able to understand the words uttered by the British waiters aboard the Lusitania, improbable as that may seem.

68 DAYS ON WATER.

The party left Cincinnati October 16, and they will have put in sixty-eight days on water—not as a diet, understand, but in a travelling sense. That includes the time spent on the Pacific and Atlantic oceans, the Mediterranean, and such other seas, brooklets, rivulets, bayous and exhibits of aqua pura that happened to get in their way.

The baseball players, who may frequently be noted in the dense crowd of Chicago people that followed Comiskey and Callahan, if one has a keen vision, played over fifty games during their absence. The White Sox hold a two or three game lead over the Giants on the entire series, and Umpire William J. Klem holds a decision over both clubs on moving picture films.

There is one name missing from the list of those who will sail home from Liverpool. It is the name of Jack Sheridan, the veteran umpire. Jack started out with the tourists and toiled around the rude world as far as Cairo, and there he was left ruminating among the scarabs and Egyptian cigarettes. The umpire business just naturally bogged down and left old Jack flat.

Immediately after the banquet in New York the ball players disperse to their various regular commands. McGraw plans to go on to Chicago with the Comiskey party to attend the banquet there and he will be accompanied by Mike Donlin, Fred Merkle, Jim Thorpe, George Wiltse, Bunny Hearn and Larry Doyle, the only members of the Giants on the tour. After the Chicago feed the Giant chief will hurry right on through to the training camp at Marlin.

M'GRAW PLANS FEW CHANGES.

McGraw is anxious to look over his new recruits, although, as he says himself he will have little time to examine youngsters, and his chief concern will be whipping his regulars into shape for the opening of the season.

McGraw's remarks indicate that his 1914 line-up will be just about the same as last season, and he has declared that any new men will have a hard job beating Murray, Snodgrass or Burns out of jobs in the outfield, where the changes have been predicted.

Callahan and the members of the White Sox, with the world tourers will hurry on from Chicago to Paso Robles, in California, where the Sox are training this Spring and where they will train again next year. Weaver, Scott, Benz, Faber and Daly are the men who will accompany Cal.

Schaefer belongs to Washington, and Ivy Wingo, Magee and Steve Evans are the property of the St. Louis Cardinals. Young Leverenz is a member of the Browns, who goes reluctantly to his fate, while Dick Egan was a chattel of the Brooklyns the last he heard about it.

Jim McAleer and his wife joined the party after the tour started. At that writing Jim was president of the Boston Red Sox, but the club moved right out from under him while he was away and he has not settled upon any plans for the future as yet.

Zbyszko to Wrestle Lurich in Tourney

NEW YORK, March 3.—It has been definitely settled that Stanislawe Zbyszko, who claims the world's title, and George Lurich are to appear in a special match at the international wrestling tournament which will be staged at Madison Square Garden next Tuesday night, March 10.

The drawings have also been made for the tourney, with the following results:

Alexander Aberg, of Finland, vs. Ivan Mamatoff, the Cossack; Gustav Fristensky, of Bohemia, vs. Charles Simmard, of Canada; Waldek Zbyszko, of Poland, vs. Tom Jenkins, of America.

Rowing Associations in New York Merger

NEW YORK, March 3.—The Harlem, Hudson River and Long Island Regatta Associations have been merged into a single body, which was christened the New York Rowing Association, and thereby the sport hereabout has been given a big boost.

Freight Clerks Hear Call of Diamond

The freight claim department of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. is to be represented on the diamond this season by one of the speediest nines in the city, several old high school stars being in the lineup. Among the players are: Keilty, Dorchester's first baseman; Higgins, also of Dorchester; "Dutch" Allen, of Braintree, and McDonough, Dedham's speedy shortstop; Murphy and Devlin of the Spartans of Dorchester will be the battery. Address all communications to Ned Keilty, manager.

Chase Asks $35,000 to Join the Federals

SAN JOSE, Cal., March 3.—Hal Chase, first baseman of the Chicago White Sox, today confirmed the report that he is dickering with the Federal League.

Chase said he was told to name his own terms, and that he replied with a demand for $30,000 for three years and a $5,000 bonus to sign. The Federals are now considering.

BOWLING FACTS AND COMMENT

MATCHES TONIGHT.

AMATEUR BOSTON PIN—Dalton at Oxford.

SUBURBAN INTERCLUB — Winthrop Y. C. at Newtowne; Cottage Park Y. C. at Colonial; Winsor at Dudley.

GREATER BOSTON — Magann at Cambridge; Allston at Eglestone; Murray & Irwin at Rowe's Wharf; Casino at Bowdoin Square; Terminal at Brighton; East Boston at Red Dragon.

COLUMBUS CLUB—At the Columbus Club alleys.

POSTOFFICE—At the New Old Colony alleys.

ROYAL ARCANUM—At the New Old Colony alleys.

BANK AND TRUST—At the New Boston alleys.

TELEPHONE—At Littlefield's alleys.

ANTO—At the Chauncy alleys.

CUSTOM HOUSE—At Littlefield's alleys.

FIRE INSURANCE—At the Adams Square alleys.

FURNITURE—At the Arch Street alleys.

TECHNOLOGY—At the Trinity Court alleys.

BLAKE & KNOWLES—At the Old South alleys.

ELITE—At the Elite alleys.

Probably the only bowler on the alleys today who rolls with the aid of a crutch is Spiers of the Simpson team of the Caledonian Inter-club League. Spiers does mighty well in spite of this great handicap. In bowling he throws the crutch in front of him before letting the ball go from his hand and in this way he manages to steady himself.

Several big matches are scheduled to be pulled off at the Arch Street Alleys in the near future. A return match between Bob Gillispie and Harry Swales seems a certainty, while there is also talk of matching Gillispie and "Bo" Hartford with Swales and Bob Gilholm.

Gillispie beat Swales recently by a slight margin and ever since then, friends of the latter have been clamoring for another match. They still maintain that Harry is Bob's master.

The Newspaper Leaguers did considerable pin splitting at their weekly session. The Transcript rollers just made the 1500 mark, while the AMERICAN and Globe 1st team were only a few pins below this score. Doherty of the Globe, O'Connor of the Transcript and McKee of the AMERICAN were the high individual stars with scores of 349, 340 and 329 respectively.

The Furniture League will close its season at the Arch Street Alleys tonight. A hot finish is predicted as a single point spearates the two leading teams, Shawmut and Dunn. Shawmut will try hard to land the title and the Morse trophy.

There is apt to be something doing about the proposed Walsh-Poehler and Hintze-McKee match when the All-Stars convene for their weekly session at Littlefield's on Thursday night.

WALTER CAMP'S COLUMN

Remarkable Golf Played at Palm Beach—Growing Popularity of Hockey—Germany Falls in Line.

Written Expressly for the Boston American.

By WALTER CAMP.

The most remarkable golf of the Winter was played by James R. Hyde, of South Shore, in his contest in the semi-finals at Palm Beach for the South Florida golf championship. His opponent was H. P. Farrington of Woodlands.

Every now and then it is remarked by a golfer, sometimes in the case of his own game, more often in that of the opponent, that there are days when once started the little white ball takes on some peculiar determination of its own and either refuses absolutely to go where it should, or with a vagery, equally marked, determines, no matter in what direction it is struck, to go looking for the hole.

On those latter days the player may hit the ball with a mashie from almost any point off the green and the ball goes bobbing along searching for the hole and if there is any possibility of it, ducks in with a chuckle. Now, Hyde happened upon one of these days and this is no disrespect to his golf. Farrington went out in 35 and found himself 6 down to Hyde's three 2s, two 3s, three 4s and a 5, or a 29, running down putts from anywhere off the green.

This will stand for some time as the outward record of the course. Hyde the next day defeated Richards by one up in a most closely contested match of thirty-six holes.

HOCKEY MATCHES ARE POPULAR.

Phillips-Exeter and Phillips-Andover Academies met for the first time this Winter in a hockey match. This sport has grown so popular and so prominent at the colleges and schools that the rivalry which extends to other sports was pretty sure to enter here, and this resulted in the scheduling of a contest between these two old schools.

Phillips-Exeter showed the same marked superiority in hockey that they demonstrated last Fall in football, defeating their somewhat bewildered opponents no less than 4 to 1, and it may be said, in addition, that Preston, the Andover goal keeper, did some heroic work in keeping the score down to these proportions.

OLYMPIC APPROPRIATION IN BERLIN.

Once more the imperial Parliament at Berlin has fallen foul of the proposed appropriation of $50,000 for the Olympic Games, and finally passed it. The grant, it will be remembered, was rejected by the Budget Committee in the middle of January. A resolution was later introduced to restore the item.

The trouble was partly political and partly due to differences of opinion among the Turner organizations. These German Turners disapproved of what they call "the American tendencies within the Olympic Committee," and they called the American ideals of sport "prostitution to the chase for records."

The Socialists who defeated the plan before, still asserted that they were willing to appropriate money for sound sport, but would not vote a grant while the workmen's gymnastic societies in Germany were excluded from representation on the Olympic Committee.

BASEBALL NEWS and NOTES

PRESIDENT JOSEPH LANNIN OF THE Red Sox will go over to New York Wednesday to be there to meet Tris Speaker, when he comes in with the world tourists. Talking the the matter over, Lannin said: "Tris has a good place with the Red Sox, and knows it. Don't worry, he'll be with the Sox when the season swings round."

THE WORK OF BILL JAMES, THE Braves' big pitcher, will be watched very closely by Manager Stallings at Macon. If the young fellow shows any signs of the aeroplane tendencies that marked his work after his phenomenal start last season, its a safe bet that he will be traded quickly.

BILL CAME MIGHTY CLOSE TO CHANGING quarters during the Winter at that. Stallings tried to make him one of a batch of players who would go to the Coast in exchange for Schmidt, the young catching phenom, from that section, but the deal fell through. Bert Whaling was another listed for a transfer on the deal.

THE PLAYING OF YOUNG REGH, "THE freshest kid in baseball," will be followed with much interest at the Red Sox camp. This husky little chap showed splendidly in his tryout at Fenway Park last season, and if he improves a little, will give the regulars a run for their money.

THERE IS THE CHAMPIONSHIP FEELING about the new Red Sox headquarters, both President Lannin and Secretary Riley believing that the slump the team fell into last year, will be among those missing when the Johnson circuit gets under way. Even the temporary loss of Joe Wood does not dampen the ardor much.

THERE IS A PERSISTENT RUMOR CURRENT among the baseball fraternity in Boston that the matter of having both Braves and Red Sox use Fenway Park as a playing field will soon be reopened. It is generally admitted that the Walpole street yard will hardly accommodate the crowds that will be out to see the team when it comes back, reinforced by Johnny Evers.

CAPTAIN BILL SWEENEY IN HIS FIRST letter from headquarters in the South intimates that he is rounding into form much more rapidly than he did a year ago, and that his bad hand has ceased to bother him any.

PITCHER DOC WATSON OF MILWAUKEE, who had several big league bids for the 1914 season, has decided to give the new league a tryout by signing with Joe Tinker's Chicago club.

ARTHUR PHELAN IS LOOMING UP AS the man for the regular shortstop berth with the Chicago Cubs. In practice at Tampa, he has all other competitors distanced. If he continues to make good, he will take a burden off Manager O'Day's shoulders, as Zimmerman can go back to his natural place at third.

THE PITTSBURGH PIRATES HAVE booked a game with the University of Pittsburgh nine for the city championship on June 3. The Dreyfuss team will probably meet the Washington Americans before the season opens.

REVIVALIST BILLY SUNDAY, THE SINGING parson, once a famous ball player, has taken up temporary headquarters in one of the most palatial mansions in Scranton, Pa., where he is conducting a series of meetings.

TEX WESTERZILL, A THIRD BASE phenom, who had been signed up by the Detroit Tigers, is another young star who has been lassoed by Joe Tinker's Chicago Feds.

LIVER OUT OF ORDER?

Rheumasalts is Fine for the Liver and Kidneys

The liver is the largest gland in the body and one of the most delicate and important.

Lame back, shooting pains, tired feeling, dizziness and nervousness simply mean that your liver and kidneys are clogged with impurities, and that poisonous uric acid is retarding their work of aiding the digestive functions and filtering the blood. Flush your liver and kidneys and set them working right again by taking Rheumasalts in water for a few mornings.

Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness and bladder disorders come from torpid liver and sluggish kidneys. So keep your liver and kidneys active and working right by taking Rheumasalts. This wonderfully efficient effervescent lithia drink helps the weakened liver and kidneys and cleans out the stomach and eliminates toxins and poisons and leaves the intestinal canal clean and sweet.

Rheumasalts is a scientifically blended and chemically pure carbonated lithia drink. It is delightful to the taste. It is a uric acid solvent as well as a saline laxative. Acts quickly without griping or nausea.

The next time your liver and kidneys bother you, or your back aches, get a bottle of Rheumasalts. It comes in 25c, 50c and $1.00 bottles. If your druggist hasn't the genuine Rheumasalts, send the price to the Rheumabath Company, Dept. 53, Minneapolis, Minn., for a bottle. Sold by all Riker-Jaynes and other leading drug stores. (6)

Ouch! Pain, Pain, Rub Rheumatism

Rub Pain Right Out With Small Trial Bottle of Old "St. Jacobs Oil"

Rheumatism is "pain only." Not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Stop drugging! Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil" directly upon the "tender spot," and relief comes instantly. "St. Jacobs Oil" is a harmless rheumatism cure which never disappoints and cannot burn or discolor the skin.

Limber up! Quit complaining. Get a small trial bottle of "St. Jacobs Oil" from any drug store, and in just a moment you'll be free from rheumatic pain, soreness, stiffness and swelling. Don't suffer! Relief and a cure await you. "St. Jacobs Oil" has cured millions of rheumatism sufferers in the last half century, and is just as good for sciatica, neuralgia, lumbago, backache and sprains.

HALPIN CAPTURES INDOOR CHAMPIONSHIP IN THE 600
AFTER WORLD-RECORD RUN

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

DAMON RUNYON TELLS WHAT WILL HAPPEN NOW
TO THE WORLD TOURISTS

HALPIN LANDS WORLD RECORD AT TITLE MEET

By JAMES S. MITCHEL,
World's Champion Weight Thrower.

Tom Halpin, of the Boston A. A., today holds a new world's indoor record for 600 yards as a result of his brilliant race in the feature event of the national indoor championships at Madison Square Garden last night. Halpin, by his brilliant victory, also wiped out the championship record of 1 minute 14 seconds, held jointly by Harry Gissing and Abel Kiviat.

Halpin spreadeagled the field and covered the distance in 1 minute 13 2-5 seconds, clipping two-fifths of a second from the previous world's record held by "Ted" Meredith, who failed to participate in last night's race.

Halpin ran a well-judged race, leading from the start and winning by ten yards from Abel Kiviat, who earlier in the evening had created a new record for 1,000 yards. Mel Sheppard, the veteran middle distance star, finished third.

Alvah T. Meyer equaled the championship record in the seventy-five-yard dash by winning in 7 3-5s., and a few minutes later he captured the 300-yard dash and smashed the championship and indoor American marks.

Abel Kiviat clipped two-fifths of a second from the championship mark in the 1,000-yarg run when he traveled the distance in 2m. 15 2-5s.

Richard F. Reimmer captured the American walking title and hung up new championship figures. He walked two miles in 14m. 21 3-5s., clipping 10 seconds from the old record held by R. B. Gifford.

In the high hurdles the old championship mark was equalled by Jack Eller, but as he knocked down the last obstacle he will not be credited with a record.

Harry Smith won the two-mile race in 9m. 18s., and in doing so he clipped 1 1-5 seconds from the old championship mark.

HOCKEY NOTES AND GOSSIP

Manager Walter Lougee of the Arena has received word from the crack Grand Mere team, also from Sherbrooke and the Toronto Rowing Club team, all three desiring to appear here the latter part of this month. Grand Mere and Sherbrooke are the strongest amateur teams in Canada and would be big attractions on the local ice.

The Crescent Hockey Club of New York will probably be seen here next week against the Irish-American A. A. team. It has been several weeks since the Irish-Americans have appeared in a game, but the players have been holding their usual practice sessions and are in the best of condition.

The Arlington High and Melrose High hockey teams held practice at the Arena last evening in preparation for their game on Friday evening and both sevens showed good form. Coach Forrest Osgood of Arlington is driving his boys hard, for a win over Melrose will give the Spy Pond team a chance to win the league championship.

Rindge Technical and Cambridge Latin will battle for the championship of Cambridge at the Arena on Friday afternoon. Rindge has the stronger team and should have but little trouble in defeating their rivals.

That Harvard will be well supplied with hockey stars for the next few years is a certainty, as the entire seven that represented St. Paul's School this winter have signified their intention of entering Harvard next Fall. St. Paul is termed the home of American hockey, as nearly all of the college stars first took up the game at that school. The great "Hobey" Baker was taught the Canadian ice game at the New Hampshire institution.

This year St. Paul was represented with its usual strong aggregation and during the season defeated several of the college sevens. Although St. Paul School did not beat Dartmouth this season, the Green coach stated yesterday that the school team gave his boys their hardest game of the season and this means a whole lot, in view of the fact that Dartmouth played all of the best college sevens.

Boston English High and Hudson High will clash in an inter-sectional hockey game at the Arena next Monday evening. Both of these teams are claimants for the State championship. The Hudson team will be accompanied by several special trains of rooters.

Plans are now being made for the world's hockey series in Canada. The final game of the National Hockey Association will be played tomorrow night and the winner of the series will meet the Victoria team of the West. The Sydney team of the Maritime League has challenged for the Allen Cup and will probably get into the play.

The Vancouver team of the Pacific Coast League will play an exhibition game against the Wanderers of Montreal at Montreal on March 9.

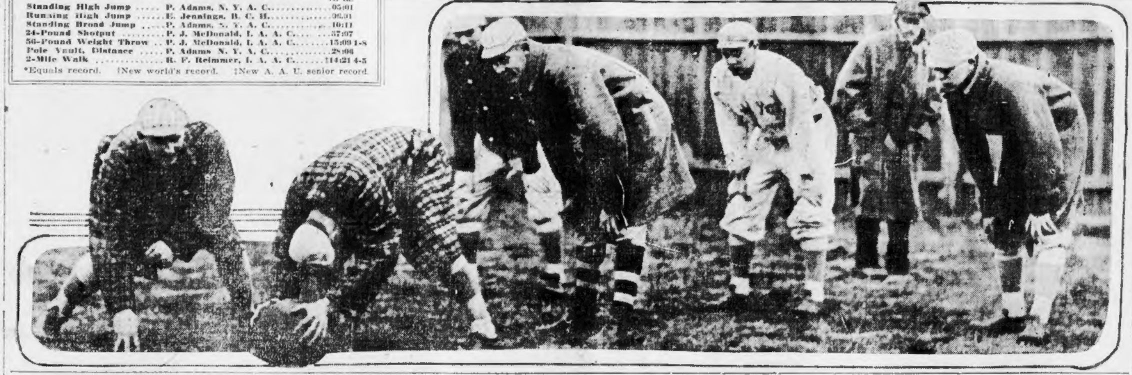
BASEBALL STARS WARM UP WITH FOOTBALL PRACTICE

This picture, received today from Marlin, Tex., shows a squad of New York Giants who, upon their arrival in Texas, found the weather so cold that they could not play baseball. So they tried football, using a "medicine ball" for purpose.



SOX "ROOKIES" LEARN HOW TO FOOL BATTERS

HOT SPRINGS, March 3.—With wires down eastward of Hot Springs, it was learned with surprise today that Boston had supposed the Springs were caught in a storm. The weather here has been very genial and the wire trouble will have to be laid upon more dismal places to the east. In fact, there never can be a flood at Hot Springs, which nestles so high up in the mountains that it is almost too high to catch ordinary rain except on the rebound.

The sun shone brightly and the temperature was about 65 when Bill Carrigan took his squad of pitchers and catchers out to Majestic Park this morning. Carrigan, Ray Collins and "Heinie" Wagner are giving the new flingers some insight into big league baseball. They are not letting the men do much hard work, but they are teaching them style.

TEACHING THE "ROOKIES."

The minor leaguers and most of the unsuccessful major leaguers have a bad habit of "tipping off" their delivery and they might as well have "nothing on the ball" as to do that. Those old timers like Lajoie, Eddie Collins, Frank Baker, Ty Cobb and the rest of them can hit almost any kind of a bal lif they know what is coming. All the rookies here have been used to handling their delivery in such a way that the batter could easily know in advance what to expect. Those babies would last about an inning in a regular ball game.

So Carrigan, Collins and Wagner have been teaching them some of the tricks by which successful big league pitchers fool the batters.

LONG HIKES FOR PLAYERS.

Carrigan takes his squad daily for a long walk over the mountains. The Sox boss will prescribe the same treatment for the later arrivals. He is preparing to receive a bunch of men next Sunday. The entire squad, with the exception of Joe Wood and Tris Speaker will be here then.

After a pleasant Saturday and Sunday the weather was too cold yesterday morning for practice, the temperature being 23 degrees above. However, it climbed to 40 at noon and the men had a work-out. Carrigan had his squad bunt the balls served by the "rookie" pitchers. Then the old-timers chased the balls around the outfield, with Bill Sweeney, "Hub" Perdue and Bert Whaling of the Braves helping them out.

WILLIE RITCHIE PREPARING FOR BOUT WITH AD

By JACK CONWAY.

WILLIE RITCHIE today started training in Chicago for his ten-round bout with Ad Wolgast, which will be staged in Milwaukee on March 12. William asserts that he is in grand condition and that he will prove to the satisfaction of all concerned that he is one of our best little box fighters.

Ritchie has not been very active since he won the lightweight title from Wolgast. He has been obliged to call off many of his bouts on account of injuries.

The champion refused to fight Tommy Murphy, as he claimed that he jammed his Achilles tendon, whatever that is. Ritchie, however, now comes to bat with the announcement that he has been tangoing and turkey trotting like a regular big leaguer during the past few weeks and that the exercise has strengthened that much advertised Achilles tendon.

IN discussing the matter, Ritchie said:

"My Achilles tendon is O. K. now because I have strengthened it by dancing the tango. Out in San Francisco they say I am one of the best in the business. Modesty forbids me from making the same assertion myself, but I'm there, all right. Each night I tangoed about five miles, turkey trotted four more, dipped a mile and a half, and then tried the hesitation waltz.

Those who have looked me over unanimously agree that there is nothing the matter with that tendon any more. The hesitation waltz, because of the nature of the dance, made them suspicious at times, but when I would tear into the tango all doubts were allayed."

WOLGAST is confident that he will beat Ritchie in Milwaukee and that by so doing he will force the champion to meet him over the derby route on the Pacific Coast, where a referee's decision can be rendered. The only chance Wolgast has of winning back his title in his "go" with Ritchie this month is by landing a knockout blow, as no decisions are rendered in Milwaukee.

THE Michigan lightweight has been showing to advantage in ten-round contests and should carry Ritchie along at a merry pace. Ritchie is also a very slow starter and usually does not begin to fight at his best until after he has been in the ring for five or six rounds. Ad, on the other hand, gets going at top speed in the opening session of his encounters.

CHAMPION SAYS SO

CHICAGO, March 3.—Golf and dancing are to be important items in Willie Ritchie's preparations for his boxing contest with Ad Wolgast March 12 at Milwaukee.

The lightweight champion declares both will be utilized and believes he will derive more benefit from them than from any other part of his training. The golf will be a supplement to his regular work, while dancing will improve footwork.

According to Willie, any man who can dance the tango for an hour need have no fear of a mere ten-round bout.

School Notes

A private school meet, the first ever held in Boston, will take place Saturday at the Boston Y. M. C. A., under the auspices of the Huntington school. Most of the local private schools and several distant schools will compete for honors.

Ted Crookes, the Fall River professional runner, and Jimmy Fitzgerald, a New York professional distance man who has victories to his credit over Billy Queal, have been matched to run a twelve-mile race at Taunton, Thursday evening.

* * *

At a meeting of the athletic committee in charge of the track meet that the Emmet Guards of Worcester are to give in the State armory in Worcester the latter part of the month, announcement was made that the Boston Athletic Association would send a team of ten men to run at the games.

* * *

An open amateur track meet will be held next Wednesday, in the Lawrence State armory. All of the best athletes in the Essex County schools will take part and entries are expected from schools in the Greater Boston district.

* * *

Leach Cross, the New York lightweight boxer, earned $28,000 during the past ten months. This is the sum he will pay tax on, according to a certificate filed with the United States internal revenue bureau.

* * *

Several amateur wrestlers in this vicinity plan to compete in the National A. A. U. championships which come up for decision at Chicago, March 27 and 28.

* * *

George W. Wightman defeated G. A. Rockwell, 4—6, 6—0, 6—2, in the final match of the members' senior handicap court tennis tournament at the Boston Athletic Association.

* * *

Candidates for the Worcester Academy baseball team have reported to Coach G. N. Messer, and baseball work taking the place of indoor track practice from now until the outdoor season starts.

* * *

With seven straight victories the Northwestern Military and Naval Academy, Highland Park, Ill., has won the Class B championship in the National Military School rifle shooting competition.

* * *

Relay races between the members of the Dartmouth College faculty is the latest plan of Coach Harry Hillman for the series of indoor track meets that begin at Hanover next Saturday. An excellent feeling exists between the students and their instructors, and common interest in track athletics will only strengthen this feeling.

George Freeman, boxing instructor at Allen School, West Newton, is planning a boxing exhibition, which will be held in the school gymnasium, in which several of the students will appear as well as a number of well-known local and professional boxers.

* * *

An epidemic of scarlet fever has hit the basketball teams and it is not likely that either the Bridgewater Normal or High teams will be seen upon the floor for some time to come, and possibly not again this season.

* * *

Plans for the collection of a large amateur athletic union fund for an American Olympic team of 1916 have been outlined at a conference between President Alfred J. Lill, Jr., and Secretary James E. Sullivan of the union. It was decided to open the campaign for 1916 funds with a circular letter to each club and allied organizations requesting the assessment of a given sum on each and every member of such club.

No B. C. Games with Red Sox or Braves

The Boston College baseball team will not have a chance to play the much hoped-for games with either the Red Sox or Pilgrims.

President Gaffney of the Braves was willing to meet the local college on the diamond, but the fact that his team will open away from home makes it practically impossible.

The game with the Red Sox was also cut out when President Lannin announced that the Sox would play no exhibition games with any local colleges this year.

Beauty

HOW TO USE AUTO-SUGGESTION AS AN AID TO YOUR CHARMS

Miss Meredith in two charming poses.

By MAUDE MILLER.

"IT'S hard to be original and yet tell the truth, isn't it?" said Anne Meredith, who is playing Mrs. Vincent in "The Rule of Three." "And as for beauty, beauty lies entirely within the limits of your own territory. No out-door walks, no skin tonics, no sleep prescriptions are going to do any good unless you are good to yourself.

"Some up-to-date people call this very simple process auto-suggestion. Well, let me tell you what this auto-suggestion will do for you. There is no limit to the things it can be used for, after you have learned how to attain it, use it and hold on to it.

"Most girls believe in being nice to other people that their good looks will shine right out on their countenances. This is a splendid idea, but don't be so nice to other people that you can't be nice to yourself. Treat your body so as to make it beautiful, out-match your mind with your body. It is all a question of harmony—harmony of line, harmony of color, and harmony of conception. But your conception must be subtle. In art you learn technique which after the portrait has been completed you must hide cleverly. And so you must learn to hide the technique of looks; you may know and understand how to make the most of your charms, but don't allow your technique to be apparent or you will be dubbed a poseur for your pains.

"And now how to hide this technique. Cultivate sincerity. After all you can always be real and yet be interesting. An unusual manner, thought out carefully, and liberally powdered with a charm all your own, is hypnotizing, and men forgetting everything else but your peculiar fascination call you beautiful.

"Don't you all see what I mean? Make yourself so attractive to yourself that you are never lonely in your own companionship. Walk along a crowded thoroughfare and say to yourself: 'How well I am looking today,' and watch the people stare at you. I have known of people personally who have thought and worked out beauty by this method of auto-suggestion for some time, and actually they have even accomplished such results as compelling a thin mouth to look full. I believe that it is possible to think beauty right out from the inside. Thought is powerful enough to do anything, anywhere, any time, if it is only trained to concentrate."

Household Suggestions

Here is a receipt for a rich cake: one and one-half pounds flour, one pound butter, 14 ounces sugar, three pounds currants, one-half pound chopped sultanas, one pound peel (citron and lemon), eight eggs, four ounces ground almonds, two teaspoonfuls vinegar, one teaspoonful carbonate of soda, wine glass of brandy. Warm the butter, add sugar, and beat to a cream; then gradually add the dry ingredients, beat the yolks of eggs, add, mix well, then add the brandy and whipped white of eggs, and lastly the vinegar. Bake six hours. This cake should be made and kept in an air-tight tin before icing, and will keep twelve months.

A mincemeat that will keep delicious for twelve months is made as follows: Take one pound each of apples, suet, raisins, sultanas and currants; also one-half pound of figs. Chop them all fine, or pass through a mincing machine. Add one pound of castor sugar, the juice and grated rind of two oranges, one grated nutmeg, and one teaspoonful of allspice. If liked, one teacupful of brandy may be added . Mix all well together, then put in pots and tie down tight.

To make a wringing machine last for years, after wringing clothes get a piece of old blanket and mangle two or three titmes. This will dry the rollers and save them.

When boiling a pudding in a cloth, a plate should be placed at the bottom of the saucepan, so as to prevent the pudding from sticking to the pan.

When cooking a blancmange, while yet boiling, mix a piece of butter with it, then you will find it turn out of the mould when cold without any trouble, and also that it will have a much glossier appearance.

If moths are in a carpet, spread a damp towel over the part and iron it dry with a hot iron. The heat and steam will kill the worms and eggs.

Swift & Company's sales of beef in Boston for the week ending Saturday, February 28, averaged as follows: Domestic beef 12.88 cents; imported beef 10.90 cents per pound.

William F. Kirk Tells About:

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

I THINK the love of a dog for a man is beautiful, sed Ma to Pa last nite. I was reeding here about a poor old dog that was found starved to deth beeside his master, a old miser. I suppoas, Ma sed, that the dog dident know the master had munny to buy all kinds of food with. I suppoas the dog thought that the old man was vary poor, so he stayed till the end.

The dog was moar of a man than the miser, sed Pa. The dog lived and died for his master. The miser lived and died for his miserable gold. Gold, the biggest tragedy and the biggest joak in the wurld.

We ought to have a dog, sed Ma. Neerly all the ladies of our set has nice littel dogs.

We shall nevver have a dog as long as we live in a flat, sed Pa. A person that lives in the city, cooped up in a flat, ain't got no rite to ask a dog to leed that kind of a life & I want you to keep on beeing a old fashioned wife & mother, Pa sed. The love of a dog for a man is butiful, as you say, but the love of a woman for a poodle dog is the limit. Pa sed. Every time I see a big fat blonde woman git on a street car with a littel dog under her arm and hear her saying to the dog Wopsey kiss mama, I ask for a transfer & get out at the first cross town line, sed Pa. If I dident git out, I wud feel like throwing Wopsey and mama out on thare cars.

Well, you doant need to git all worked up, sed Ma. I doant meen that I wud like a poodle dog anyway. I guess I wud rather not have a dog while we stay in the city.

That is a sensible way for my deer littel wife to talk, sed Pa. I know you wud nevver be so silly as to make a speshul pet of a littel pup and neglect our littel Bobbie. I rote a poem the other day, sed Pa, when I was setting in my office & doing nothing else. It was about this saim foolish love of a woman for a littel pet dog, & this is how it goes:

Wen littel Johnnie Jones got up
He washed his face in a china cup;
The bathroom was locked and barred his path
For littel Fido was taking a bath.

Wen littel Johnnie was all washed up
And asked for his morning bite and sup,
He was given some dry old Johnny-cake
For littel Fido had speared the steak.

That nite, wen he wanted to go to bed
"You must sleep on that rug!" his mother said.
"And don't wake Fido," the boy was told,
"Fido's in your bed with an awful cold."

And littel Johnnie said with a sigh,
"I wish I could catch a cold—and die."

Why, husband, sed Ma, I dident know you cud rite so well.

You nevver reely appreshiated my geenyus, said Pa. I have rote a lot of things that you made fun of, so I stopped showing my riteings to you.

Pa, I sed, you know you dident rite that. I saw Doc Brittain hand that to you & he told you he rote it.

This morning I asked Pa for a quarter but I dident git it.

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

LYSANDER JOHN APPLETON has been married forty years, and twice a day for forty years, or to be explicit, 8,256,789 times, he has stepped to the dresser to brush his hair, and has had to tip the mirror back to get a look in. His wife had always tipped it forward just a few minutes before to see how her clothes hung in the back.

Finally, in desperation, he bought a chiffonier for his own use, and when he reached home that day he found the chiffonier turned around with the mirror tipped forward. His wife was also using that. It was too much, and throwing a military hair brush at each mirror, he disappeared. Many men have disappeared for reasons less grave.

Two days later, when two hundred miles away, he stopped in his flight and sent back for a copy of his town papers. He wanted to see how his wife was taking it.

There was a picture of his wife on the front page, taken, he saw at once, specially for the occasion of her sorrow.

She wore her hair high, and her gown cut low, but Lysander John forgave this little devotion to personal appearance when he read the interview which appeared underneath the picture.

"He has been murdered," sobbed Mrs. Appleton. "There is nothing in the story that he has gone with another woman. He was Truth and Fidelity, and the most unselfish and most loving of husbands. Devoted to his family, happy only in our happiness, God never made a more perfect man! He has been murdered or he would return to me."

And here, according to the paper, her frame shook with sobs, after which she suffered a collapse and went to her bed attended by eleven doctors, murmuring all the time, "He is dead, or he would return!"

As Lysander John read, his tears welled up and fell.

"A woman with faith like that," he said, "deserves better treatment. I will return and reward her for her confidence in me."

Two days later he sat in his den, and again mused alone.

"What she said to me," he whispered, "wasn't a bit like what she said to the reporters. If ever she had any faith in me, it was shredded like codfish before I got to it."

Deserved It

Able Seaman Murphy of Somespeed, was the inventor of the most ingenious excuses in order to obtain 'leave.'

"What on earth do you require leave for this time, Murphy?" asked the captain, as our hero made his oft-repeated request. "It isn't your great-aunt's wedding day, is it?"

"Faith, no sorr," replied Pat, with a grin. "It's not so bad as that. It's" —trying to look serious—"bedad, Oi hardly loike to tell yez, sorr, at all, at all, thin!"

"Oh, come now, Murphy!" said the captain, grimly. "I'll try to stand the shock."

"Well, sorr, it's like this intoirely. Oi had the misfortune to have a brother born blind, sorr. Heaven be praised, he's just got his soight and wants to see me, sorr!"

"Leave granted!" snapped the captain, as he burst into uncontrollable laughter.

An Appeal to Wives

You know the terrible affliction that comes to many homes from the result of a drinking husband or son. You know of the money wasted on "Drink" that is needed in the home to purchase food and clothing. ORRINE has saved thousands of drinking men. It is a home treatment and can be given secretly. Your money will be refunded if, after a trial, it has failed to benefit. Costs only $1.00 a box. Come in and get a free booklet and let us tell you of the good ORRINE is doing. Wash., D. C. The Great French Complexion Soap
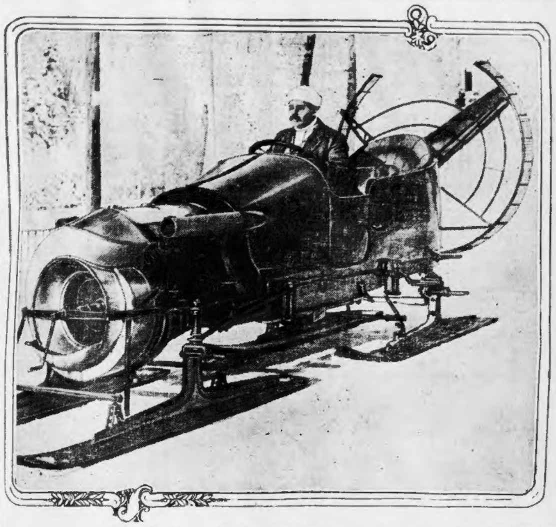
The beauty of the skin depends to a very large extent upon the healthy activity of the pores, which must be kept clean, so as to enable them to easily throw off impurities. For this purpose nothing is so good as the famous French complexion soap called Savon Cadum, made in France. This medicated soap cleans the skin perfectly, stimulates the activity of the pores and frees them from the waste matter that obstructs them. Sold by dept. and drug stores. 50c. a cake.

An Auto-Sleigh That Travels from Sixty to One Hundred Miles an Hour



Count De Lesseps in his wonderful motor sleigh.

IN view of the fact that Lieutenant Shackleton is to test the practical possibilities of motor traction in his forthcoming expedition to the Antarctic, we place before our readers a view of an aero propelled motor sleigh which shows what can be done on snow by existing machines. This form of aero-ski-ing, far from being a dream of the imagination, has already reached a remarkable degree of perfection, and has several devotees, notably Count Bertrand de Lesseps, son of the famous Frenchman of Suez Canal fame, who is here seen with his wonderful car in the beautiful valley of Chamonix in Switzerland. Count de Lesseps has constructed an air-propelled machine which is capable of attaining a speed of from fifteen to sixty miles an hour over the snow, according to the condition of the frozen roads. The shoe-shaped chassis is attached to broad, flat metal runners, and vibration is reduced to a minimum by the addition of strong springs, seen at the side of the body. It will be noticed that the propeller behind the pilot is well guarded by a metal screen as a protection against anyone approaching it closely. When snow falls wheels are placed on the projecting pins, which lift the ski from the ground, and the car will then attain a speed of nearly a hundred miles an hour.

LATEST STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were irregular this afternoon, markets having grown a trifle firmer since the opening, when the range was downward. Aside from a few specialties, like oil or express companies, which made good gains, the price range was narrow in either direction. Business was exceedingly dull. In speculative and financial circles it was believed that the refusal of the British government to deal direct with General Carranza in investigating Benton's death had postponed a crisis between this country and Mexico.

In Boston Quincy was off 1 and Shattuck-Arizona 1⅛, Boston & Maine ⅜, New Haven ⅜, Elevated ½, Shoe ⅛, Butte & Superior ¼ and North Butte ¼. Calumet & Arizona was up ⅜, Granby ¼ and American Telephone ⅜.

In New York New Haven had sold down to 65⅝, which was its low record there. It is said that liquidation in this issue has been renewed. By afternoon the losses included New York Central ⅞, Canadian Pacific ½, New Haven ⅛ at 66, General Motors ¾ and American Can ⅜. Among gains were Missouri Pacific ¼, Reading ⅜, Lehigh Valley ⅜, American Telephone ⅜, Steel ¼, American Smelting ⅛, Mexican Petroleum ½ and Cotton Oil 1. Southern Pacific, Amalgamated, Northern Pacific, Union Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio were unchanged.

TRADING WAS LETHARGIC.

Trading in stocks was lethargic all the morning, business for the first hour not totalling 44,000 shares and markets were duller than yesterday. The effects of the great storm were still felt in New York, where commission houses and exchanges were lightly attended. Nothing had happened to renew interest in stocks and the Mexican situation is regarded as so uncertain that there was caution on the part of all elements as to commitments. Wall Street appears to have borrowed from President Wilson a policy of "patient waiting." Steadiness of stocks of late is said to indicate they are in strong hands.

At the start prices ruled a little lower, but price changes were as devoid of significance as of breadth. They had been lower in London, where Canadian Pacific was the weakest of internationals. There was anxiety there to learn what attitude the British government would take regarding intervention in Mexico, where relations between the latter country and the United States are causing more alarm than in New York. From the statement made on behalf of the British government in the House of Commons it appears that it has not learned of any change in the attitude of the United States.

MORE INTERVENTION TALK.

The Opposition is disposed to prod the British government to take further action in regard to the murder of Benton. It is not as considerate of the government as Republicans have been toward the Wilson administration at Washington. Nothing happened in Parliament that had any immediate influence upon stocks on either side of the ocean. Insistent rumors that President Wilson is weakening as to his past policy toward Mexico were again insistently circulated in financial districts today. Bears were persistent in intervention talk. And it has been made so much of for so long that it has lost weight, even when considered as more probable.

In spite of the denial by one director that the United States Express Company would liquidate and retire from business, belief was expressed in many quarters that there is something pending which will have an important bearing upon the express business. Express company stocks were strong. Wells-Fargo and Adams issues advanced substantially during the morning.

SOME ISSUES ADVANCED.

The market seemed to have a slightly better tone in the second hour and a number of issues sold higher, including Brooklyn Rapid Transit, Reading, Mexican Petroleum, Union Pacific, Texas Co., Canadian Pacific, Amalgamated and Steel common. There was nothing in early news to strengthen coppers. It was cabled from London that small dealers were willing to shade 2½ cents a pound to make sales, but had not been able to create any demand. No business in this country was reported.

If there was some improvement as to prices late in the forenoon business grew quieter. Second hour trading was not of half the volume recorded for the first hour. By noon the list was irregular with both gains and losses small.

By that time the Boston market was not as strong relatively as the one in New York, but price changes ruled as insignificant both ways. Quincy, off a point, was the only stock to show much loss. This market had been quiet from the opening. The activity of Arizona Commercial was a feature of interest.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

The London copper warrants market was weaker this morning, spot and futures being off 5s. They were up 2s. 6d. at the close.

The increase in real and personal property in New York city in 1913 is estimated at $58,086,271. The increase in personal property was $14,874,220.

It is claimed that the United States Steel Corporation has rendered itself liable to fines totalling $405,000,000 by rebating.

From a statement by James J. Hill it is believed that he will resume the presidency of the Great Northern road.

There is now more demand for steel rails, but it is said that manufacturers are unwilling to accept orders at present prices for deliveries far ahead.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

Manager Chester I. Campbell took possession of Mechanics building yesterday morning and with a force of men immediately commenced work to stage the motor show which opens in that building on Saturday evening next. The annual Boston motor show brings to this city the big men of the trade, who find that this is an excellent opportunity to get in touch with the latest conditions in the motor world.

The Boston show, coming as it does at the opening of the riding season, has always been productive of greater interest than almost any of the other shows on the circuit and in the matter of actual sales it has been a record breaker. The indications are that the experiences of the past will be repeated here during next week.

It will take the men some two or three days to get the building in shape to permit of the receipt of the cars, so that no cars will be allowed in the building until Thursday morning next and the latter part of the week will be devoted to receiving and placing various exhibits in their respective booths.

At the occasion of the third anniversary of the big electric vehicle campaign inaugurated three years ago by the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston, a banquet will be held this evening at 6:30 o'clock in the large banquet room of the American House.

Prominent men in business, including manufacturers, agents, publishers, representatives of automobile publications and the members of the Electric Motor Car Club of Boston have been invited to attend and a very pleasant evening is assured.

* * *

"Sim" Baker, well known in the local motor trade, has become a special representative of the George W. Houk Company of Philadelphia, makers of the Houk & Rudge-Whitworth wire wheels.

"Ed" Habich, Massachusetts and Rhode Island distributor of the Cole, returned yesterday from Jamaica, where he had been enjoying a well-earned vacation. Mr. Habich returns to Boston in fine condition and eagerly awaits the opening of the automobile show in this city.

CHAPTER I.

Dark clouds were lowering above the care-free head of Hugo Reid. There was no reason as yet for him to perceive them. Besides, he was in the seventh heaven of an experienced man of thirty who, wearied with careless pleasures, realizes that he has won the innocent heart of the girl he had hardly hoped ever to make his wife.

Only the evening before, Irene Benedict had confessed her love for him and given her promise. Now he was off to her mother's house to place a solitaire diamond ring on the third finger of Irene's left hand—and feel her unreserved kisses upon his lips.

Before leaving the house, Hugo went into the room where his strangely broken and aged father sat dozing before a grate fire.

"Father," said Hugo, touching the old man's shoulder. "I want your congratulations. Irene has accepted me. I am going now to place my ring on her finger. I'm very happy, father."

The doddering old man looked up with a fond, senile smile. He patted his son's hand, mumbling the words: "My boy, my boy!" That was all, and he dozed again.

Hugo spent a happy a merry evening with Irene and her mother. Irene was charmed with the ring.

"It is the first symbol of our perfect union," she said. "I love you utterly; I am all yours forever."

"I never thought there could be such joy in loving," said Hugo, clasping her in his arms.

And then they became very merry because Irene's mother pretended that it was necessary for her to keep her eyes upon them every minute.

Their engagement was publicly announced. And on that very day the dark clouds descended upon Hugo Reid, driving every fond hope from his bosom. From his father's old family physician he received this letter:

"My Dear Hugo—I have just learned of your engagement to marry. As an old friend, and your father's physician since his early boyhood, I am convinced that you should no longer be left in ignorance of certain facts about yourself.

"Do not be unnecessarily alarmed for yourself; this warning is meant only to arouse your sense of justice and right toward others.

"Briefly, it is not right for you to marry. Perhaps I have been wrong not to inform you that your father is, and for some time has been, insane—an inheritance from your grandfather. It is sufficiently probable that you have inherited the taint.

"Come and see me and I will explain more fully.

"Your friend,
"FREDERICK SMITH, M. D."

CHAPTER II.

Hugo had received no preparation for such a shock. It very nearly put out the light of his reason. That he was not, indeed, well balanced mentally was proved by his first act after his first semi-stupor of horror and dread.

Blazing with anger, with the doctor's letter in his hand, he rushed into his father's room, roughly shaking the shoulder of the old man, who dozed before the fire.

"Father!" he shouted. "Look what you have done to me—to Irene!"

And he poured forth the sinister message of the doctor's letter. The old man mumbled into his beard, only half understanding.

"How could you dare to marry, and bring into the world a child doomed to bear that awful taint?" raved Hugo. "How dare you leave me in ignorance of the fact that I was so cursed?"

The old man, now understanding, huddled into an inert mass in his chair. Never afterward did he speak a coherent phrase.

Hugo ran from the house, and to the house of Irene's mother. His betrothed received him joyously, with outstretched hands. But Hugo sank on a couch with his head in his hands and wept.

"Oh, my love, what is it?" asked Irene, with her arm about his shoulders.

He drew away from her and rose, his face drawn, a settled purpose in his eyes.

"Irene," he said, "I have only just learned the truth about myself. It is terrible. I must not marry you—nor anyone else. It would not be right."

Before she could make an inquiry, or approach him again, he was gone.

Days passed and he did not return. Irene pined, she could not forget. She brooded over her strangely lost love. The scenes of their courtship were unendurable to her. On pleasant days she took her embroidery and went and sat under the trees beside the river—vainly seeking forgetfulness.

CHAPTER III.

What was Hugo doing? Despair had settled down upon him. There were signs which made him know that he was doomed.

He plunged recklessly back into his old life; the life which had held him up to his meeting with Irene, the life which included many unworthy associations—and Hazel Hamilton.

Hazel received him back with open arms. Deeply she had resented his letter, in which he announced his engagement to marry and bade her a last farewell. But now her triumph overcame every other emotion.

But the siren was kind, in her selfish way. She saw that Hugo was ill and distressed in mind. So she frequently took him out in her canoe on the river. While she paddled Hugo would lean back on the cushions almost in her arms, and speculate on how soon complete darkness would overwhelm him.

Now and then the siren would take his face in her hands and turn it to place a kiss upon his unresponsive lips. That is how he chanced, one afternoon, to behold Irene on the river bank with her head bent over her embroidery.

Irene lifted her head and saw Hugo at the same moment he beheld her—with his lips almost upon those of a strange and seductive young woman.

The kiss was interrupted. Hugo seized the paddle, brought the canoe had seen Irene, only to see her fleeing from him.

In his frenzy Hugo never stopped to shore and leaped upon the bank. Hearing the protests of Hazel, he turned and cursed her, telling her to be gone forever.

Then he ran to the place where he until he was within the house of Irene's mother. There he poured into the elder woman's horrified ears the whole story of his impending fate.

"Once more, only once, let me see Irene," he pleaded.

The pitying mother summoned her daughter. Hugo's mind was at the very verge. He seized Irene in his arms with such violence that she screamed in terror. Then he threw her from him and fled into the street.

Now Hugo was laughing, convulsed with mirth, as he skipped gaily along the street toward home. All the awful dread of weeks past had left him, for the light of his mind, to the last flicker, had gone out.

"Oh, what a joke," he chuckled, as he skipped along. "I must run home and tell father. Ha! ha! everybody but me is crazy, and all the crazy ones are married! Oh, what a joke!"

CHAPTER IV.

Hugo's valet failed to observe his master's state, but, fortunately, remained within call.

In his sitting room Hugo saw his reflection in the glass. Laughing merrily, he broke the glass into a thousand fragments.

Then he saw a framed portrait of Irene on the table. Violent anger seized him. He ripped the photograph out of the frame and tore it into bits. He twisted the metal of the frame into odd shapes, and began to laugh.

* * * * * * *

Hugo's unsuspecting valet admitted Irene, who knew no more than that Hugo was ill. She had forgiven him about the strange woman in the canoe.

She saw Hugo twisting up the frame of her photograph and laughing so strangely!

"Why, Hugo!" she said.

Seeing her, he snarled like an enraged animal. He seized her so roughly that she screamed involuntarily.

When the valet entered he was strangling her, with her relaxing body laly lying upon a couch. The servant was no match for his master. The police entered barely in time to save the girl's life.

Before they had the madman under control he had nearly choked the life out of one of the girl's rescuers.

Irene Benedict revived sufficiently to understand that Hugo was hopelessly insane, and would never again enjoy the blessing of freedom. Later on learning from her mother that Hugo's life had been blasted by that curse which so often rests upon second generations, she was ready to bless his memory—for Hugo had saved her from herself.

SOUTHER OUSTS BATES, OLD BOSS OF COHASSET

Representative William O. Souther, Jr., of Cohasset, elected to the Legislature on a Democratic-Independent platform in a Republican district, has now defeated Selectman Philander Bates, who has been Selectman, Overseer of the Poor and Assessor of Cohasset and holder of several other offices in the town for forty years.

Mr. Bates, who is seventy-eight, said to his friends: "In the words of another former town official, 'It looks as if my term of office had expired.'"

The contest between Souther and Bates was the biggest contest in Plymouth county yesterday. Souther's majority was twenty-six. He was defeated for the same office a year ago by Harry E. Mapes, who was the leader of the Bates campaign against him yesterday.

It was the first time in his life that Mr. Bates had ever been defeated for public office, although he has held office for forty years and was a Republican boss on the South Shore.

We Shall Write 50 Editorials About This Book

Therefore, Buy It and Read It. And Discuss It with Us in This Column

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company.

One of the greatest books ever written, and probably the best intellectual history ever written, is called "History of Civilization in England," by Henry Thomas Buckle.

This book is a history of human thought and human events since the beginning of the world.

To know what that book has to teach is to have the foundation of a solid education.

We intend that every man willing to read a serious book shall be told about this book, and have the opportunity of owning and studying it.

The book has always sold for $4.50, published in two volumes by D. Appleton & Company.

The book is to be sold now in four volumes for $1.00.

It will be exactly the same book as that which sold for $4.50. It will be printed from the same plates, every word, exactly the same.

The publication in four volumes instead of two will be more convenient for the reader.

This today is a preliminary announcement.

When you ask for the book in your book store or department store, you may not be able to get it. If that is so, ask again.

Then if you can't get it, send one dollar to this office, and the book will be sent to you. But we prefer that you should buy it of a department store, OR OF YOUR OWN NEWSDEALER. He also will get it and sell it to you for one dollar.

Today we give you merely an announcement of the fact that the book is published and ready for sale.

We are very glad to say that it can be sold with modern methods for less than one-quarter of the price at which it has sold before.

We shall write at least fifty editorials about the book, taking it up chapter by chapter, and dealing with the important lessons and thoughts that it contains.

The book is well printed. The edition which we offer you is exactly the same as that published and sold for four dollars and a half by D. Appleton & Company. The only difference is that the present edition which is offered to you contains also an introduction by Arthur Brisbane.

That writer has no financial interest whatever in the book, no share in any profits, but like others acquainted with Buckle is extremely anxious that millions instead of a few thousands should be acquainted with his thought and the result of his work.

A great many of our readers have asked for advice as to what books they should read.

We advise them now to read BUCKLE'S HISTORY OF CIVILIZATION IN ENGLAND. We offer them the opportunity to get the book in four volumes for one dollar, less than a quarter of the price at which it has hitherto been sold.

Those to whom even one dollar is a considerable investment are advised to get the book at the public library and read it, without expense. It will be distinctly understood, we trust, that the object in urging the purchase of this book is not the making of profit, but the spreading of knowledge.

We must tell our readers that the book is very serious, very earnest. It is one that must be read slowly. And one that will not be read easily.

It contains a history of human thought, of human events. It gives to those who will read it carefully knowledge of the world and its development without which a man cannot consider himself educated or able to judge modern events.

Get the book and read it very slowly.

From time to time it will be discussed in this column and in the other Hearst newspapers.

Not less than fifty, and probably a great many more editorials will be written about it. These, we hope, will increase interest in the work, persuade a great many thousands of our readers to read it—and help to make the reading somewhat easier and more attractive.

When you have read this book you will have got the patient labor of a lifetime which the author devoted to it.

He gave his life to studying history seriously. And then he spent FOURTEEN YEARS WRITING THIS BOOK.

It was said of him truly that his name was known to every educated man in the world after his book appeared.

He did not live to enjoy the glory, as he died very soon from overwork.

But in the book which remains he has a monument that will live a long time.

And to that monument, to this excellent book that educates men, we attract your attention.

And we advise you to get it and read it.

MY COMPASS

By LILIAN LAUFERTY

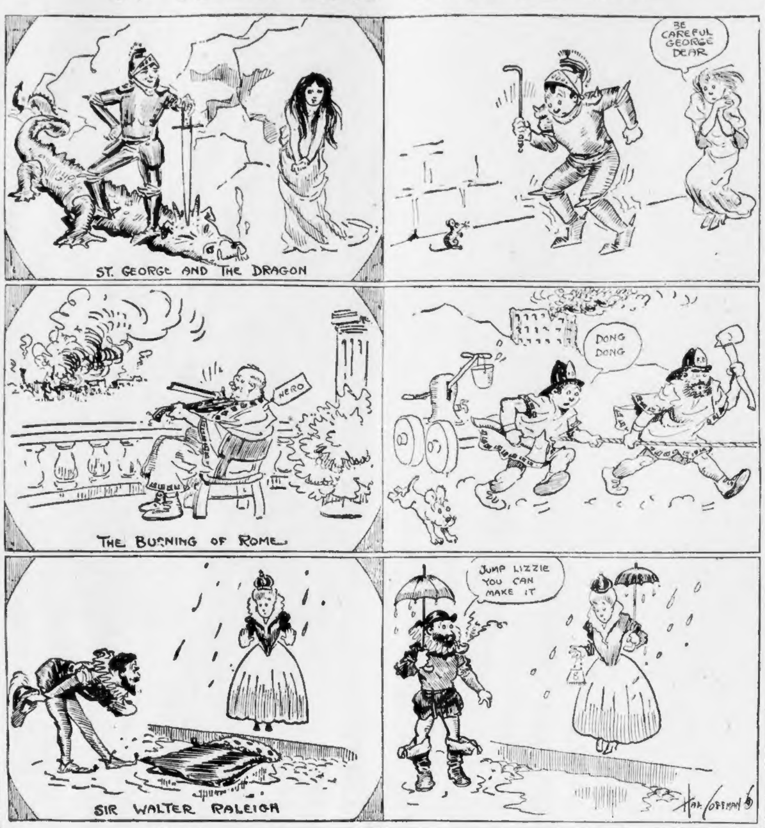
HOW bright and fierce and fickle is the South!
The South wind lies upon your scarlet mouth
That burns and parches spirit with its drouth.

As cold and keen and cutting as the North,
Your eyes can chill my poor and humble worth
When ice blasts drive my soul a-shivering forth.

A placid myst'ry broods o'er all the East;
Your brows so call me to the mind's high feast
That all my wealth of loving seems increased

But wondrous sweet and tender is the West:
Body and soul and spirit are at rest,
When evening finds my head upon your breast.

IN "REEL" LIFE---IN REAL LIFE



The Two Sisters

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

CHAPTER XXXVII.

THAT Caryl Marvin could resist the temptation to ask questions when it suited her plan to seem incurious, was proved by the fast that she made no further inquiries with regard to the roses received by Julia that Sunday morn.

Julia's head was better, but as she did not feel well enough to go out to the midday dinner, Caryl went alone to their usual eating place. On her way home she stopped at a small shop which chanced to be open today, and bought a cheap novel which she read all the afternoon. Sitting on one chair, her feet on another, she became so much absorbed in her story that it was almost dark before she put the book down. Julia suggested then that her sister go to the delicatessen shop at the corner and get something to eat, as she herself wanted only the cup of tea and bit of bread and butter which Mrs. Halloran would bring up for her supper. Then, as there was nothing else to do, Caryl undressed and went to bed, but not to sleep.

While Julia slumbered, the younger girl lay still, thinking out the problems of her own life and likening them to those of the heroine of the foolish novel over which she had spent so many hours. Why might not she, Caryl Marvin, be like the girl in that book? Why might not she marry a rich and handsome man and become "a society leader and queen"? That her ideas were ridiculous did not occur to the sentimental child whose imagination had been inflamed by pages of nonsensical and fantastic romance. As she had read, she had imagined herself in the place of the heroine, and as the hero stalked through the book, he bore to her mind's eye the image of Harry Somerdyke. Surely what one girl had done another might do, and where one had succeeded another might succeed.

But how could she again attract Somerdyke? She remembered once more with a surge of anger his cavalier treatment of herself in the presence of another girl. But had not the heroine of her novel "trusted though all the world should say her nay"? And had not the hero always some good reason for his strange actions? She would find some excuse for writing to him.

Suddenly she remembered Julia's warning of the previous evening, and she smiled to herself in the dark as she recalled it. Julia was a good one to talk when all the while she was having an affair with somebody who sent her flowers—probably Kelley Delaine himself. What could attract him in Julia—if it was really he who had sent her those flowers?

Caryl's reason for showing no great curiosity with regard to the floral offering was that she did not want to give her sister an opportunity to renew the subject of the night before—that of the imprudence of a poor girl's receiving favors from men—nor give her a chance to declare that she, Julia Marvin, had not encouraged such attentions from any man. Were she to do this, Caryl would not be able in the future to declare that Julia had been as imprudent as her younger sister had ever been. This was, to the indiscreet girl's way of thinking, a case where ignorance spelled wisdom.

Although she had laid awake until late, when she awoke the following morning her eyes were large and bright, her face flushed and lovely. Julia was already dressed and looked pale and haggard compared with her sister as she bent to kiss her good-bye. An hour later Caryl, with a smile of sly amusement, pinned two of Julia's pink roses in her belt just before starting for Delaine's studio. He had told her he would not want her today, but she could explain that she had thought that perhaps he might have changed his mind, so had reported for work in case he had reconsidered his determination.

It was a bold bit of stratagem, but she felt able to carry it out. She would watch Kelley Delaine's face as he saw the roses. If he flushed, she would know that he had sent the Killarney beauties to Julia.

Wang had evidently received no word that he was not to admit his master's stenographer, and as Delaine called out "Come in!" in reply to her knock on the door of the study, Caryl entered with assumed shyness.

"I know you said you would not expect me, Mr. Delaine," she hastened to assure him, "but as I had a whole day on my hands I thought I would stop in just to make certain that you had not something you wanted me to do."

"Oh, that's kind of you," replied Delaine Then as his eyes fell on the roses he did not flush as she had expected but smiled with perfect composure. "Those are pretty roses," he remarked casually. "Been treating yourself, eh?"

"No,' she said gravely. "A friend sent them to me."

"Oh, I see," he remarked with such indifference that she felt her cheeks burn. "Yes, it was kind of you to come, but it so happens that I'm just starting off for a day up in New Hampshire. He glanced at his watch. "By Jove!" he exclaimed. "I've hardly time to make my train now. Excuse me, please, if I hurry right off!"

He caught up his hat, threw a light coat over his arm and rushed from the room, and, a second later she heard the front door slam behind him.

She stood still for a moment, listening, then, with a swift, catlike tread, glided across the floor to Delaine's desk. She had seen an address book lying there. It probably contained Harry Somerdyke's name. Picking it up she ran her eye down the page under S. His name was there, but under it were only a street and number in a foreign city. With an impatient movement, she tossed the little leather book back upon the desk.

As she did so, a letter Delaine had written, addressed and sealed, and evidently forgotten to mail, dropped to the floor. Instinctively she stooped to pick it up, and as she did so, she saw that it was directed to Harry Somerdyke at a small hotel of which she had never heard Repeating the address over and over to herself, she left the apartment so noiselessly that Wang, entering the study five minutes later, was surprised to find it empty.

A Great Man and a Child

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY

FIFTY-FOUR years ago there died at Clapham, England, the great Sir William Napier, hero of many battlefields, author of the immortal history of the Peninsuin War, and in many ways one of the most distinguished men that Great Britain has ever produced.

When at the height of his well-deserved renown, adored by his nation, courted by the rich and the great, and literally bending under the great weight of the honors that rested upon him, Sir William, while going over his estate, saw a little girl who was crying most bitterly. Sir William, ordering his coachman to stop, asked the little girl what the nature of her trouble was. Between her sobs the child informed him that she had been sent by her mother for a pitcher of milk, that she had fallen and broken the pitcher on a stone, and that she was crying to think of the punishment that should be meted out to her upon reaching home. Sir William begged her to stop crying, assured her that he would pay for the broken pitcher, that he had no money about him then, but would be at her cottage the next day at a certain hour, and that she must tell her mother, for him, not to punish her before that time.

The next day Sir William remembered that he had a very important engagement with some of the most illustrious men of the country, whom he had agreed to meet at his house at the very hour he had promised the little girl he would be at her mother's cottage. Which engagement would he keep? It did not take Sir William long to decide. He would let the great ones wait, while he kept his word with the little miss of the broken pitcher. He got there in time, pacified the child's mother with some good "coin of the realm" (enough to buy many new pitchers), kissed the little one goodbye, and returned as fast as he could to meet the distinguished gentlemen in the drawing room at Clapham Manor.

Questions Answered

F. M. N.—It will not answer to designate any particular region as possessing the "finest climate on earth." The Sandwich Islands have a fine climate, the Island of Madeira has a fine climate, the Island of Corfu has a fine climate, Southern California has a fine climate. The uplands of Mexico, of Argentina and of Brazil have a fine climate. You will find a "fine climate" (that is to say a mild and yet healthful climate) in lots of places about the earth. Nearly every country has spots, more or less extensive, where the climate is all that could be desired.

Evil Tendencies—The Great Battle in Life Is to Conquer Our Vicious Propensities and Besetting Sins

A CORRESPONDENT, who evidently does some thinking of her own, wants to have light thrown upon the fact that different people are started out in the world with tendencies that are evil, so that in such cases life consists in fighting against the current that we ourselves set in motion.

One person, she writes, is naturally religious, another just as naturally irreligious. One seems to be born sensual, another spiritual. All of this troubles her. She is not the first person to be surprised by it or perplexed by its consequences.

If all the children born in the same family displayed the same tendency, we could blame heredity. But they do not. There is a certain family in which there are five children, and no two of them show any resemblance to each other, so far as inclination and disposition are concerned. The doctrine of heredity has been worked for more than it is worth. It breaks down when applied to concrete cases.

Not only are these five children born of the same parents, but they have grown up under the same surroundings So that the doctrine of environment breaks down as well as that of heredity. It is like the instance of two apple seeds which at the start are the perfect sample of each other.

But one grows up into a tree bearing Greenings and the other into one that yields Baldwins, although germinating in the same soil and warmed and watered by the same sunshine and rains. There is mystery both in the family and the fruit orchard, and it is likely to remain such, and learned language expended upon it conceals more ignorance than it reveals wisdom.

When, however, we come to that part of our correspondent's inquiry where she complains that the tendency some of us (most of us) start out with is an evil tendency which has to be fought against something can be said that is more to the point and more practical. Whether that is a thing to make her unhappy will depend upon the way in which she looks at it. That people in general have some such tendency in them suggests that there must be some good reason for its being there. Development is always the product of some kind of conflict without something to fight against. Military and naval authorities, who believe in war because war is their business and gives them occupation, salary and distinction, argue in behalf of war as an expedient for the cultivation of manhood.

They say it gives us something to lay out our powers upon and thus to develop those powers and create moral stamina.

The enemies lurking in a man's own bosom will answer the purpose equally well, fully as well, and he may serve a successful campaign in the field and still be no kind of a match for his vicious propensities or any one of his easily besetting sins. He may have courage to conquer an enemy, but be too cowardly to conquer himself. No, the Bible has the right of it. "Greater is he that ruleth his own spirit than he that taketh a city."

It is, therefore, a thing rather to gratify than to disconcert us that we have a battle ground so near home that we are not obliged to enlist and join the army in order to acquire manliness of stature.

Motherhood and Politics

By EVA MORLEY MURPHY

Suffrage and W. C. T. U. leader from Goodland, Kansas, now campaigning for election to the United States Congress.

UNLIKE many of my youthful companions I never wished to be a boy. As a mature woman I have always been satisfied with my sex.

To be a woman with a woman's intuitions, sympathies, understanding of other women's problems and a heart big enough to desire to help all womankind has always seemed to me a most desirable lot in life. To add to this the experience of wifehood and motherhood ought to make any normal woman thankful to her Creator for the great responsibilities and blessings He has bestowed upon her.

Motherhood, especially, is a refining experience in even the most frivolous existence, and in a woman of earnestness of purpose who realizes that life is an opportunity for helpfulness to as large a circle as her influence can reach motherhood may reach out to encircle the whole race in her protecting arms.

I am glad I am a woman, a wife, a mother and a grandmother.

I do not remember a time in my life, however, when I did not believe that women should have a voice in the government and regulation of the affairs of the nation. I have always been in favor of woman suffrage. I believe that the franchise is a broadening experience for women. My heart has often been stirred by the wrong and injustices inflicted on the weak and poor, whether man or woman, and again and again I have said, "If women were helping to make the laws for the family of this nation such injustices would not be."

* * *

In the campaign for equal suffrage, which resulted in giving the ballot to Kansas women in 1912, I spoke for it and organized the women in several counties. But I had no political bee in my bonnet while so doing, nor since. In my advocacy of woman suffrage I have simply been desirous that the woman's standpoint should be adequately represented in our Legislature and in the halls of Congress.

Strangely enough it was a man and not a woman who first made the suggestion to me that I should become a candidate. My experience so far in the campaign, which is just beginning, leads me to the conclusion that the men of the Progressive party are in earnest in their declared sentiments regarding woman suffrage and are not only willing but desirous of sharing the responsibilities of government with women. And it is quite within the possibilities that Kansas may be the first State to send a woman to Congress. While I have not made any arrangements yet for a house in Washington, I am determined to convince any who may be skeptical that I really can read and understand, at least as well as the average man, the problems of legislation.

* * *

We women, like Mary of old, have kept many things and pondered them in our hearts. Of late years we have talked them over in our clubs and other meetings. We have listened patiently to the political orator, have read widely and thoroughly and most of us have formed some conclusions. We have been preparing ourselves for the franchise which we knew was to be ours.

I believe we shall use this ballot as wisely as men do. I think we shall form a larger independent class of voters than the country has yet had.

Large numbers are already trained, through the altruistic work of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and our federated clubs, to accept defeat and not be discouraged. Hence it is reasonable to anticipate that women will work and vote for measures that may not have an immediate prospect of success rather than to bend their energies toward party victory.

Science Questions

By EDGAR LUCIEN LARKIN

Q.—If an explosion takes place in a room where no one is within hearing, is there really any sound?

A.—No. Sound is a reception of the energy of impulses, and after reception by the aural organs it is translated into a sensation named "sound," which sensation is sensed by the personalities that express or manifest in brains. Both the process of translation of energy of impulses into sound and personality are totally unknown to science. Having no clew as to what a person is, of course how it receives sensation cannot be explained.

Q.—In going from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean through the Panama Canal, in what general direction does one travel?

A.—The longitude of the Atlantic end of the canal is 79 degrees 56 minutes, and of the Pacific end is 79 degrees 32 inmutes west of Greenwich. The general tendency is therefore toward the south and east.

Q.—Please state why the moon sometimes appears with points turned upward, and at other times downward?

A.—There is one cause only—the rotation of the earth. If the moon rises, with points turned upward, then, when it sets, the points must turn downward. That is, the western horizon meets the points in its apparent approach — they point toward it—apparently downward, in the western sky.
